WATSON GIVEN INSTANCES OF MURDERS

West Virginia Man Says Non-Commissioned Officer Did It

SERGEANTS BLAMED

Gives Other Witnesses to Crime at Camp Merritt, N. J.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—Charges that three soldiers were murdered by non-commissioned officers at Camp Merritt, N. J., during the war were made in a telegram received today by Senator Tom Watson, Georgia.

The telegram was signed by Bruce Bennear, of Elk Garden, W. Va. The Georgia senator said Bennear be summoned before the senate committee investigating Watson's charges that soldiers were illegally executed during the war.

"Saw three men murdered at Camp Merritt, N. J., by Sergeant Stanley, Sergeant Mahan and Sergeant Smith," declared Bennear in his telegram.

"Another man beaten unconscious by Sergeant Lampkin. Other witnesses were: Fred Furlough, Carthage, N. Y., Millard Lamue, St. Joseph, Mo., and other men. Number of men were brutally treated at this camp—too numerous to wire.

This is the second instance of alleged murder of soldiers at camps on American soil. The first instance was brought out in the testimony of Marion J. Wallis, of Athens, Ga., who charged that Sergeant Crawford shot and killed a private named Halley of Tampa, Fla., at Camp Wheeler, Ga. Crawford issued a denial of the charges and the committee has ordered a further investigation of the case.

BRENNAN SHOWS HIS INNOCENCE

Man Arrested by Stanley Is Exonerated in Court

Thomas P. Brennan, who was arrested Tuesday night on a warrant charging embezzlement signed by Charles P. Stanley, with whom he has been associated in the real estate business, was yesterday afternoon vindicated of the charge.

Mr. Brennan had taken a trip to Pomona to visit friends over the Christmas holidays and did not know that he was wanted in Glendale. As soon as he learned that the Glendale police had a warrant for his arrest he returned and notified the police that he was at his home.

Brennan was taken to the police station and told the story of his moves since leaving Glendale and denied that he had committed any act that could be construed as embezzlement. The police checked up his story and found that it had the ring of truth.

As a warrant had been issued for the arrest of Brennan, Chief Martin was forced to hold him but he was extended every courtesy. Late yesterday afternoon Mr. Stanley, who had preferred the charges against Brennan, went to the police station and asked that the charges be dismissed and that Brennan be given his liberty. He said that a mistake on the part of a bank clerk had resulted in filing the charges.

OASIS OF WEST IS DRY AS SAHARA

Sixty-two Arrests Postpones New Year's Celebration

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo., Dec. 29.—Sweetwater county, Wyoming, the "wettest spot in the west," was dry today. Federal officers swept down on three towns in the county, arrested 62 persons, including five women. More than 4,000 gallons of moonshine were confiscated and scores of whiskey stills were seized.

All but two of Rock Springs' 30 soft drink parlors were closed today, Nine saloons at Green River and five at South Superior had also suspended business. The 62 defendants will appear in federal court January 16 at Cheyenne.

NEW ENTENTE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—Italy may be forced to an entente with Great Britain against France because of the French demand for a big submarine fleet, the press spokesman for the Italian delegation declared today.

Brimstone and Fire Doctrines of Billy Sunday Are Scored

What a delightful time Billy Sunday will have looking down from the upper balconies into hell, says James W. Foley in "The Listening Post" this evening. Mr. Foley doesn't believe in Billy's sort of brimstone and he refers to him as blatant, bilious, blustering and bombastic, condemning with fire and sword and claiming to speak in the name of the kindest, sweetest, most forgiving and beautiful soul that ever habited this human temple of flesh.

What Mr. Foley says is so direct that you will read it with interest.

Henry James in his comments on the news of the day pays his respects to Billy Sunday, too, and pays them in no less terms than does Mr. Foley. Quoting what Billy says about evolution Mr. James says they are the words of an ignorant man. It is the recommendation of Mr. James that Sunday's proclamations and antics should be scrutinized with a view to determining what ails the man.

However, the editorial page is not all Billy Sunday. There are able editorials on live subjects, splendid features, poetry, quotations from other papers, truths in epigram and John Pilgrim's "Watching the Parade."

BOY CONFESSED MANY BAD JOBS

Runs Into Police Net After Early Morning Call

SAN DIEGO, Dec. 29.—The series of early morning burglaries which have been keeping the local police on the jump for the last two weeks apparently ended today with the capture of Herman Brown, 18, alias "Galloping Dick," who, according to the police, has confessed his responsibility for the crimes.

The boy ran directly into the arms of a policeman early today just after he had robbed a residence, he confessed.

"I think I pulled about fifty jobs here," the boy boasts proudly.

Police records show that the youth, who appears to be about 15 years old, is wanted in several states for various crimes.

SHRINE CLUB TO MEET TONIGHT

President C. E. Neale of the Shrine Club of Glendale has called a meeting of all committees of that organization for tonight at the chamber of commerce.

In addition, Mr. Neale announced that all Shriners of Glendale and vicinity should send in their names to be added to the membership roll before January 4, the date set for the first big feed and entertainment. The committee on entertainment for the night of January 4 announced that a program is in the process of arrangement. It is to be a "knockout." The "feed" committee reports like progress.

SLAY BANKERS

HACKENSACK, N. J., Dec. 29.—Bandits entered the First National bank at Pearl River, near here and killed James E. Moore, assistant cashier, and Sigmund Butts, bookkeeper, escaping in an automobile. Some money, the amount of which has not been determined, was taken. The bandits were believed headed toward Hackensack in an automobile.

Municipal Bus Line Plan To Offset Rate Increase

By JOHN H. GERRIE
Prosperity Editor Glendale Daily Press

In the decision to increase the electric railway rate between Glendale and Los Angeles this city has been handed a jolt by the Railroad Commission of California to which it will not submit without a struggle.

Glendalians are seeking a LOWER RATE to and from Los Angeles and NOT a higher rate, and any effort to foist the latter upon them will be met with fight.

John H. Gerrie

Already there is serious talk of a municipal motor stage line through the residence and business sections of this city to connect with the yellow car line of the Los Angeles Railway in the Verdugo road or at some other point that may be found convenient. Local experts have figured that such a line could be operated by the city on a five-cent fare at a profit. With the five cents charged on the yellow car line, this would make a total fare of ten cents from any point in Glendale to almost any point in Los Angeles by using yellow car transfers.

One can scarcely question the popularity of a ten-cent rate as opposed to the proposed 23 cents one-way rate by the Pacific Electric, authorized by the Railroad Commission. With several thousand Glendalians traveling back and forth between the two cities almost daily it becomes apparent that a municipal bus line with a popular fare would not lack passengers.

It will be no breach of confidence to say that a municipal project has been discussed unofficially by members of the local city council and any one who has mentioned the subject on the streets of Glendale within the last two days knows what representative citizens think of it. It is almost a safe prediction that the temper of the people will not stand for an increase upon the already high rate between the sister cities.

Some doubt has been entertained as to whether the city of Glendale would be legally authorized to own or operate a motor stage line but this is dispelled by a glance at the city charter in which section 2 of article 3 specifically states:

"The City of Glendale shall have power to acquire and to establish, maintain, equip, own and operate, either within or outside the city, a street railway, or other means of transportation and to join with any other city or cities or county in the acquisition, construction and maintenance of same."

That settles THAT! It also settles the question of the power of the city to acquire the Glendale and Montrose railway line, to make an arrangement with the Salt Lake Route for electrifying the little-used tracks of the latter on Glendale avenue south of Broadway and in operating the Montrose cars to connect with the yellow car line in the Verdugo road.

This latter expedient was suggested in these columns a few days ago and was provocative of unexpected results. The statement was made at a meeting of directors of the local Chamber of Commerce that immediately following the publicity given the suggested Glendale avenue project in the Daily Press certain officials of the Southern Pacific had approached their friends of the Union Pacific with another suggestion that the electric railway subsidiary of the former take over the Glendale line of the freight subsidiary of the latter with a view to electrifying and operating same in connection with its established Brand boulevard line. It was further said that an "understanding" had been arrived at which may or may not mean the running of P. E. cars on Glendale avenue.

This "understanding" is repeated here only as hearsay, but its credence by a local body of business men warrants its presentation for what it is worth, before citizens generally. If there is to be a fight for lower transportation rates between two important points it is better to get out into the open than to skirmish among the bushes.

With the power vested in the city to own and operate and with ready-to-hand and eager patronage awaiting a popular price transportation line it would seem to be the easiest thing in the world for the city of Glendale to fill a long-felt want and at the same time produce an income for itself. Even if the electric line should meet its price cut the city would have established a carrying trade that would stick by it, besides benefitting Glendale through lower fares. And then, you know, competition is the life of trade!

Glendalians are NOT going to talk HIGHER FARES!

Glendalians are going to talk LOWER FARES!

And if those Glendalians who are most immediately affected by the proposed increase in their daily traveling expenses will get back of their home city council and their home city manager in the motor stage project they can put it over and WIN LOWER FARES when higher fares are threatened.

Send your views on the subject to the city manager TODAY!

DEBS RECEIVES HIS OLD FRIENDS

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Dec. 29.—Terre Haute called on Gene and Kate today. A steady stream of friends of Eugene V. Debs, recently released from Atlanta prison, called at his home on the first day of his stay in his home town. Debs arrived from Washington last night and was greeted at the station by 10,000. He was escorted to his home by a band which played the "Marseillaise." Debs' wife, who pulled herself from a sick bed to greet her husband, ushered many callers into the library where Debs lounged.

FRENCH STAND PAT ON TWO BIG ISSUES

PARIS, Dec. 29.—France is determined to stand by her submarine demands despite the criticism that has been heaped upon her, it was stated semi-officially here today. The government does not believe it is possible to reach any agreement at Washington on this issue or the aircraft question.

ARMY-NAVY SLASH

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29. — A huge slash in army and navy appropriations for the next fiscal year—possibly $300,000,000—would be made by congress under plans framed by some of the most influential republicans in the house, it was learned today.

MARINES PUT BANDIT IN HOSPITAL WARD

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29.—James Davis, 42, was captured by marine mail guards as he was attempting to break into the main postoffice in the Temple block. Davis was so severely injured in a hand to hand struggle with the marines, William N. and E. L. Lopinsky, brothers, that he had to be taken to the receiving hospital. The would-be bandit was thought to be mentally unbalanced. He will be examined by the lunacy commission.

CHRISTENING WILL PUT NORMALCY BACK ON JOB

Weather Getting in a Rut Again, Sun Tries to Shine

The public is cordially invited to a public christening today. Glendale had a little son (sun). That is a perfectly punk pun but the managing editor ordered a weather story and that thing about the christening is new to the public, if not the Glendale public. it is safe to say the mayor of Iceland never heard it unless old Doc Cook spent the night there one six-month. Doc was strong for ancient stuff too.

The weather in this region of the world has returned to normalcy. We use the word "normalcy" with due consideration for the man who invented it. Normalcy means what you are trying to say when you want to say anything is getting back on the level. That seldom occurs in politics. It occurs on the ocean sometimes but we call it a calm.

Weather in Glendale and vicinity has become so near to normal that the press associations serving the various newspapers have found it no longer of interest to readers to dispatch the opinion of the Los Angeles weather bureau chief. For that reason, we are unable to predict, guess, or even surmise what the weather is going to be tonight. It may be dry and it may be wet.—depends upon the company you keep.

Glendale housewives are rejoicing because of the attempted sunshine today. They have put off washing from Monday to Tuseday and from Tuesday to Wednesday and from Wednesday to Thursday until the linen supply is about exhausted. One prominent lady in sociable circles says that her husband has eleven shirts and because of the rain, they are both badly in need of her attention. She has a washing machine, one of the latest types,—the kind you dump the clothes in and go on reading about Madalynne and Burch and everything.

This is enough for today. To be continued if necessary.

CREPE HANGING.

Los Angeles and vicinity: Unsettled weather tonight and Friday, but probably no rainfall of importance.

(The above was received over the wire after the main weather story was in type. Intense analysis of the forecast reveals the fact that the weather man too, is hard up for news.)

M'ADOO SWEARS AT OUR DEAR M.C.'S

Says Damn and Everything at Talk Before Rotary Club

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—"I don't want to say anything against congress, but I will say that if some of the present members of that body had been given boy scout training we'd have a damn sight better government today," William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, said here today.

McAdoo, speaking on the Boy Scout movement before the Brooklyn Rotary club, hoped no exception would be taken to his use of the words "damn sight." He had previously predicted in a speech that "we will lick hell out of the kaiser," and that it stirred a clerical tempest.

SIX DAY GRIND

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—Official announcement was made today that Chicago's six day bicycle race will be under the auspices of the National Cycling Association. Previous races have been "outlaw events." The grind starts February 12, with leading American and foreign teams entered.

TOLL OF 110 LIVES

BELFAST, Dec. 29.—The year of guerilla warfare in Belfast has taken a toll of 110 lives, it was announced here today. Of these 11 were police. Five hundred and forty were wounded.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 29. — Boy, page Pussyfoot. Eight times as many Yuletide drunks were arrested here this year than in 1920, police records show.

MANICURE SETS MAY BE NEXT

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—Pigs is not pigs. Professor F. C. Fenton, of Iowa State College, suggested Gothic architecture and sun parlors for best results in hog raising.

COLOR-BLIND MEN ARE BEING SOUGHT

SPRINGFIELD, N. Y., Dec. 29.—Police today sought color-blind men. Some one put yellow paint on all the buildings in town, thinking it was red, police believe.

MISS COLE WILL NOT STAY A MISS

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—Miss Mary R. Cole, Redlands, Calif., inherited $10,000 from the estate of her sister, Miss Helen T. Cole, it was learned when the will was filed for probate here.

RAILWAY CARMEN TO OPEN A BANK

DENVER, Dec. 29.—A cooperative bank will be launched here by members of the brotherhood of railway carmen, it was announced today. Letters have been sent to all union men asking their cooperation.

LIGHT THINGS UP FOR HOBO DOGS

DENVER, Dec. 29.—Everybody's contented at the city pound. Electric lights were installed yesterday and the dogs imprisoned there are plainly happier than they were before the illumination, Superintendent Cox said.

CHICAGO ALDERMEN HAVE HEAP THIRST

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—Chicago's city council today was definitely on record in favor of beer and light wines. By a 52 to 6 vote the council adopted a resolution demanding manufacture, sale and distribution of "wholesome beers and light wines."

PROBABLE CHAMP WAS BADLY HURT

TERRA AULTA, W. Va., Dec. 29—Bob Martin, heavyweight champion of the A. E. F. and challenger of Jack Dempsey, heavyweight title holder, was so badly injured in an automobile accident here yesterday that he may never be able to fight again, his doctors announced today.

FIREMAN ANSWERS LAST ALARM

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 29.—James F. Leyden, fire marshal of San Francisco, was stricken with heart failure when summoned to a fire by telephone early today. He died a few hours later at the Emergency hospital. He had been a member of the fire department 30 years.

THRILLING WORK IN TENEMENT FIRE

NEW YORK, De. 29.—Scores of persons were imperiled during the night by fires in New York tenements. Many thrilling rescues were made. Eighteen families were trapped when two tenements on Eighth avenue burned. Some of the tenants were dragged from their beds where they lay suffocating in their sleep.

VERDUGO WASH IS NOW MADE SAFE

Sixty-eight Men Putting in Good Licks for Safety

Acording to reports from the city hall there are 68 men engaged in Verdugo canyon wash today on emergency flood control work preparing the wash to care for the next flood.

The men are working below the reservoir in the wash and are engaged in driving piling, clearing away brush and stretching wires in a series of flood checks. They worked yesterday just above the reservoir and word from the public service department says that the reservoir and surrounding territory is in such a condition as to withstand a considerable flow of water.

PROFITEER OPEN SEASON SOON BEGIN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—More profiteering indictments as part of the federal drive at high prices are imminent. Some of these indictments will be against building material concerns, as prices in this line are soaring in spite of the recent anti-trust activities of the government.

BONDS CARRY FOR HIGH SITE IS BELIEVED

Vote of Those in Favor Indicates Success of Bond Issue

TWO SITES AT ISSUE

History of High School Recalled by Election Held Today

Though voting is proceeding as quietly as a funeral, a visit to the polling places in the Domestic Arts building at Glendale High showed that citizens of the central district of Glendale consider the election for high school bonds a very live issue.

The voters come and go without a single expression of opinion, saying nothing except to ask for information, and going their way after swiftly stamping their ballots and delivering them to election officials.

Mrs. Mary L. Houston, one of the judges of election, stated that the vote cast up to 11:45 totalled more than 400, that voters had been coming in a stream ever since the polls were opened at 8 o'clock. The voting strength of Glendale city is in the neighborhood of 2000 and it was figured if attendance on the polls continues at the present rate the greater proportion of the vote in the middle section of the city will have been recorded by 6 p. m., when the polls close, but as to how it is going, not a lisp betrayed the sentiments of the electors.

That a big vote is being polled in Eagle Rock was evidenced by the call from election officials there for more supplies, their stock of blanks having run low.

Wesley Bullis, inspector of election at the Cerritos avenue polling place reported just before 12 o'clock that about sixty votes had been polled and all expression of sentiment which the voters had been overheard to make, was favorable to the bonds. The site appeared to be a matter of more or less indifference, some of the voters refusing the preferential ballot.

At the Central Avenue school, where the voters in the northern portion of the city are casting their ballots, the report up to noon was 80 votes. It is estimated that the voting strength of that section would be between 400 and 500. Autos were in attendance to bring to the polls any voters who might telephone a request for them, and it would appear that while the election is proceeding in a dignified, orderly way, systematic effort and the campaign of education which has been waged, is bringing out voters in larger numbers than are usual at a school election.

The polls will close at 6 o'clock and any citizen who reads this and has failed to record his sentiments by ballot, should lose no time in

KNIGHTS PYTHIAS BANQUET WAS BRILLIANT

Highland Park Band Guests of Local Lodge Tuesday

The Glendale Knights of Pythias Lodge held its last meeting of the year Tuesday night at the Knights of Pythias hall on Park and Brand, when Miramonda lodge of Highland Park was present with its band, and the rank of Knight was given. After that the O. I. C. was conferred on a class of twenty.

The work of the evening was followed by a banquet at which covers were laid for 120. Christmas decorations featured the feast and there was plenty of good talk and jollity, with the feeling back of it all that the coming year promises prosperity to both organizations.

On the second Saturday in January the Glendale Lodge, K. of P. and La Halla Temple, will combine with the Van Nuys Lodge and Temple at Van Nuys in a joint installation of officers.

NEW PROPOSALS

PARIS, Dec. 29.—New German proposals for re-arrangement of the reparations scheme were brought here today by Herr Fischer and Dr. Walter Rathenau. The twoenvoys refused to divulge the contents of the proposals. They will be submitted to the allied reparations commission late today.

GOVERNOR SMALL TO GO TO TRIAL

Charged With Using State Funds for Personal Uses

WAUKEGAN Ill., Dec. 29.—Governor Len Small must stand trial on charges of embezzlement of state funds and conspiracy on January 9, Judge Claire C. Edwards, circuit court judge ruled today.

The court's decision, in which some counts in indictments against Small and Vern Curtis, Grant Park banker and co-defendant, were thrown out of court, followed weeks of arguments by Small's attorneys asking that all indictments be quashed.

It is alleged that Small, while serving as the treasurer of Illinois, embezzled interest on state funds that should have been turned into the state treasury.

FOOTBALL STARS IN RAY PICTURE

In Charles Ray's latest picture, "Two Minutes to Go," which will be shown at the T. D. and L. theater, today, football fans and others will see a real football game, played not by extra men and actors, but by real footballers with a reputation line-up.

WOMEN JURORS

Women jurors are superior to men jurors in dispensing justice. This is the conclusion reached by a Minneapolis judge after an investigation into the work of women jurors in various parts of the country.

He has also found out that handsome men do not affect women jurors' judgment as much as pretty women do men jurors; that women jurors are not so prejudiced against corporations as men, and that women jurors almost always agree with each other but are frequently lined up against their male associates.

Judges in the Cleveland courts declared they had found women jurors more generally satisfactory in every kind of case than men.

It will not be long until women are serving as jurors in every State, and the sooner the better.

Spellbinding among criminal lawyers will continue to paint their clients with wings and exhaust their vocabularies of "sob stuff," but the women will not be fooled.

The blind tiger, the speed maniac, the gambler, the murderer, will have a rough road to travel when good women sit in the jury box. The women will not be deceived by the crocodile tears of the accused or the oratory of his counsel.

VALUE OF SMILE

A jury in Kansas City awarded a boy $20,000 for the loss of the ability to smile. The boy climbed a tree and there he encountered a live wire improperly insulated. It came in contact with his cheek, inflicting a painful wound which did not heal for weeks and left a permanent injury.

The nerves or muscles which governed the power of smiling were destroyed, so that his attempt to smile ended in a ghastly frown. When the boy was called to the witness stand and his attorney told him to face the jury and attempt to smile, the verdict was assured.

Twenty thousand dollars was little enough to receive as compensation for the loss of the power to smile. Some men have lost that power through other than electrical causes, and it has damaged them more than that amount.

Even when the value is small it is real.

But it is to one's self that one renders the greatest harm by sour looks. The man who can no longer smile has killed joy out of his own life.

Mrs. W. L. Robinson and son, Raymond, of Los Angeles, will be the dinner guests tonight of Mr. and Mrs. Clarene Smith of 312 North Kenwood street.

Merry Xmas.—Mrs. Mattison B. Jones was the recipient of a beautiful Christmas gift from Mr. Jones, a new Studebaker coupe, which she has had no chance to use as yet because of the bad weather.

HOARDED GOLD OF HOCHBRUNN GONE

Man Who Killed Him Probably Took Fortune in Gold Too

SEATTLE, Dec. 29.—Ferdinand Hochbrunn's hoard of gold was stolen probably, by the same person who shot the eccentric old Prussian to death at his home here more than two months ago or by the murderer's accomplice. This new evidence that the crime was committed with a motive of robbery was discovered by a special investigator for the office of Prosecutor Malcolm Douglas, has led Captain of Detectives Charles E. Tennant to announce that he is increasing his search for Clara Skarin, grand niece and ward of the murdered man.

Tennant said that Hochbrunn was known to have an obsession for collecting gold coins and hoarding them away. It is thought Clara Skarin may have information that would lead the investigators to a more definite idea of just how the murder might have been committed. Searching the Hochbrunn house here, an investigtor found a large tin box, said to have been formerly used by the aged real estate broker as a receptacle for his gold. It was empty when found except for a lot of worthless papers and newspaper clippings.

Arrested in Warsaw as Wall Street Bomb-Plot

Wolfe Lindenfeld

Wolfe Lindenfeld, former New Yorker, who is under arrest in Warsaw, Poland, as a suspect in the Wall street bomb disaster. Lindenfeld was traced to Poland by two secret service agents, who gained his confidence by posing as communists. He is said to have confessed to knowledge of the plot.

PAYING DEBTS

No man who fails to pay his honest debts can enjoy the fullest measure of self-respect or the respect of his fellow men.

It is not intended to reflect against the man who is in debt. The man who does not from time to time use his credit is a poor man indeed. Most good men use their credit both as a matter of convenience and as a matter of necessity.

But no good man will swindle his creditors.

He will either pay his debts when due or relieve his creditors of any ground for apprehension as to the honesty of his intention to pay. The man who pays or arranges to pay is the equal of any man.

But the man who deliberately dodges his debts is no man at all. Everybody knows the fact and he knows it as well as anybody else.

The man who does pay his honest debts, or if unable to pay, conducts himself so as to retain the confidence of his creditors, stands higher in the confidence of everybody in every way than the man who has never had occasion to owe anything.

PROFESSIONAL CHARGES MADE AGAINST PROMINENT AMATEUR ATHLETES

Charges of professionalism are being investigated by the Central Association of the A. A. U. against four of the greatest athletes in the country. Joie Ray, crack distance runner of the Illinois A. C.; Loren Murchison, star sprinter of the same club, and Joe and Frank Loomis of the Chicago A. C. are the targets of the inquiry. It is said the inquiry will give particular attention "to expense accounts" turned in by the athletes for trips to various meets and tournaments in which they have competed. On the eve of the reported investigation Ray announced his retirement from athletics to enter business. It is also said that the Loomis brothers have withdrawn from competition. Murchison, according to reports, may fight the charges.

Listening in on Eve

GETTING CONVERTS

"There isn't a particle of need for anybody's being baldheaded any more," stated the restless man.

"But, nevertheless, I am bald!" objected the man, with the billiard ball head. "You can't get around that absolute fact and you needn't go to telling me that my baldness is merely mental and doesn't exist or anything like that, because I have thousands of dollars of receipted bills for hair tonic and electric massage and that sort of thing!"

"Oh, I am sure it is perfectly interesting!" cried the young woman with scarcely any wrinkles at all who had her matrimonial eye on the restless man. "Do tell us what you mean, Mr. Flabberton!"

"All you have to do," he pronounced, "is to yank your hair and yank it hard and—"

"What if you haven't a spear of hair to yank?" protested the man with the billiard ball head, disgustedly.

"Listen," insisted the restless man. "I heard a lecture the other night, which explained in words of one syllable how to become fair, young, beautiful and wealthy, no matter if you were eighty years old and residing in the poorhouse, and the rosy, handsome gentleman who was dowering us with all this knowledge incidentally explained about the hair proposition.

"All over the audience you could see people slyly tugging at their hair experimentally, and I'll bet that the minute they got home they raced to their mirrors to see whether any new fuzz had started. First you sieze your hair in handfuls down close to the roots—"

"Doesn't it ruin one's marcel?" plaintively asked the young woman with scarcely any wrinkles. "What do you do about that, Mr. Flabberton?"

"I suppose," said the gentleman after cigitation, "that you would go and get another marcel—wouldn't you? Then you pull hard till it hurts and the indignant blood rushing up to find out the cause of the disturbance, goes to work building more automatically and before it realizes what has happened is steadily on the job as in the days of your youth and then the public looks at you and shouts, 'Oh, see the beautiful hair on the lady! Or gent,' as the case may be. Nothing is so much admired as beautiful hair——"

"When I was a little girl," archly interpolated the young woman, "my hair was a perfect gold in hue and people used to stop my mother on the street and——"

"You don't say!" the baldheaded man said. "Hair does change, doesn't it? Still, you're better off than if you didn't have any, of course. Women have such an advantage, what with switches and puffs——"

"Anybody," broke in the young woman with some force, "anybody at all that knew anything could tell that every scrap of hair on my head is my own! Why, I have three times as much hair as most girls my age——"

"Oh, after we're thirty, we can't expect to have hair as we did when we were young," soothingly said the baldheaded man. "But I don't take much stock in your scheme, Flabberton! It sounds too simple to be true, for one thing, and then think of the hard work of trying to pull your own hair—it would be like lifting oneself up by the bootstraps. A married man would have no trouble, because he could easily get his wife to yank it for him—by the way, how did your professor explain the large prevalence of baldheaded married men who suffer from constant hairpulling?"

"I think you are just awful, Mr. Girdle," protested the young woman, in pretty indignation, looking at him reproachfully. "To hear you talk, one would think matrimony was dreadful!"

"Well, the divorces still keep up," said the restless man with firmness. "I think there is sense in this theory, and from now on I am going to have a hairpulling seance severy night, and in one year I shall be the envied and admired of the town and the rest of you poor fish will be ashamed of your gibes and jeers."

"If you spend five minutes every day pulling your hair," insisted the baldheaded man, scornfully, "in one year's time you will have wasted thirty perfectly good hours, in which you might have learned the Eskimo language or something else useful!"

"Anyhow," persisted the restless man, "the professor had a marvelous crop of hair and he said fifteen years ago he owned just six spears!"

"Honest?" gasped the bald man, with intense interest. "Say, maybe there's something in that, after all. I guess it won't do any harm to try it out, maybe. "I've got a little rim of hair here I can begin on!"

"Of course I don't need any more hair," the young woman with the invisible wrinkles admitted, but I think I'll begin doing it, too! You are such a convincing talker, Mr. Flabberton!"

GEORGE H. THOMAS GETS PROMOTION

Local Bank Manager's Assistant Takes Up Duty Today

The appointment of George H. Thomas, assistant to one of the vice-presidents of the First National Bank of Los Angeles, as assistant manager of the Brand boulevard branch of the Los Angeles Trust and Savings bank, Glendale, was announced yesterday by Jay Spence, vice-president and cashier. Mr. Thomas will begin his duties today as assistant to D. H. Smith, manager of the Brand boulevard branch.

Mr. Thomas is a native of Geneseo, Illinois, and attended public schools at that place, Salt Lake City, Los Angeles and Prescott, Arizona, and the Prescott high school. He became an employe of the Prescott National bank in 1903 and came to Los Angeles in 1909 where he entered the service of the First National bank of Los Angeles, serving successively as bookkeeper, teller and assistant to vice-president. Mr. Thomas is a certificate holder in the American Institute of Banking and has been active in the affairs of the Los Angeles Chapter for the past five years.

WHAT HE CAUGHT

"Where can I get a license?"

"A hunting license?" asked the officer.

"No, the hunting is all over. I dant a license to marry the girl I've caught."

STARTED SCHOOL AT 9, NOW PRODIGY

Although she has attended school but six and a half years and did not start her studies until she was nine years old, Miss Eleanor Ransom of Boston is among the "honor group" in the freshman class at Vassar college. Miss Ransom is the "infant prodigy" of Vassar. She is 15 years old, and the college authorities were compelled to break the time-honored rule which set the minimum entrance age at 16 years in order to permit Miss Ransom to enter. Miss Ransom is the daughter of Dr. Eliza Taylor Ransom. Dr. Ransom is widely known for her original ideas along sociological and educational lines. It is her contention that children should not be sent to school before they are eight years old at the earliest. "Instead of working to the advantage of the child, early attempts to cram knowledge into their childish brains work to their disadvantage," says Dr. Ransom. The doctor does not consider her daughter a prodigy in any sense of the word. Rather, she maintains that her daughter merely proved her contention that if a child is kept out of school until the proper age is reached it will forge ahead of other children when the education is once started. "The child's brain becomes fagged and unable to grasp, retain and assimilate knowledge if you cram it full at an early age," said the doctor. "That is why I did not send Eleanor to school until she was nine years old. Now, at the age of 115, she has passed all other girls of her age, and she is just as carefree and natural as any other 15-year-old girl."

REV. CARTER HERE TO MAKE HOME

Rev. and Mrs. A. B. Carter from Austin, Minn., have located at 1010 East Maple street in a new residence they have just purchased. They spent last winter with a daughter who lives in Los Angeles and then determined to come to Southern California to live. When they returned to this coast two weeks ago, they chose Glendale as their future home. For 45 years Rev. Carter was in active service as a Methodist minister, preaching in Iowa and Oklahoma. When his health failed he went back to his birthplace, Austin, Minn., expecting to spend his declining years there in idleness, but so strongly did he entrench himself in the affections of his fellow citizens that he was called upon to fill the Baptist, Presbyterian and Congregational pulpits when without pastors, besides frequently filling the pulpit for his own denomination.

JACK M'DONALD IN DRAW MATCH

Will Meet Hackenschmidt Here on Night of January Seventh

Jack McDonald, champion heavyweight wrestler of Canada and Konstantine Romanoff, holder of the Pacific coast title, wrestled hours last night to a draw for the Pacific coast title in Los Angeles. Referee Pat Higgins called off the match with the remark: "You birds don't need a referee, what you need is a nightwatchman." It is rumored that Romanoff and McDonald will meet in Los Angeles again before January 16.

McDonald is the same mat athlete who last week signed articles to meet John Hackenschmidt in a decision match here on the night of January 7 under the auspices of the Glendale companies of the California national guard.

Hackenschmidt is a local wrestler who has made an enviable name for himself in the mat game and McDonald has sought a match with him ever since crossing the line from Canada. When notified of the fact that McDonald wanted to meet him, Hackenschmidt made a broad smile and said that there was nothing he wanted more than a match with McDonald and that he would meet him at any time and at any place. Through the efforts of a representative of the Glendale Daily Press the two wrestlers were brought together.

Several other towns put in bids for the match but owing to the fact that Glendale is the home town of Hackenschmidt it was secured for this city.

The Poor Inventor

THE originator of an idea has wasted his time unless he is able to interest some one else in his creation—unless that some one else can enjoy it or benefit by it.

It is because thoughts are so freely radiated—so easily exchanged and spread broadcast—that this country is a fine place to live in.

Consider the advertisements in this paper. They are thoughts. Many of them are thoughts conceived with you in mind—thoughts for your comfort—your pleasure—your health—your satisfaction. Thoughts that will save you time and money.

CHILDREN NEEDN'T DANCE SAYS HIGH STATE COURT

Conscientious Objectors Upheld in Decision Wednesday

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 29.—The right of "conscientious objectors to dancing" to refuse to permit their children to dance in public schools has been upheld by the state supreme court. In a decision handed down by the third district court of appeals the state supreme court denied the petition of the trustees of the Fruitridge school district who asked for a hearing on the Hardwick dancing case. The third district court of appeals had previously decided that the board of trustees should admit Hardwick's two children to the Fruitridge school, despite the parents refusal to permit his children to participate in "folk dances."

The appellate court ruled that conscientious objections to dancing was held by some religions and that forcing the children to participate in the dances would be denying them and their parents religious liberty.

COMMANDERY'S INSTALLATION

and crown. Mr. Peckham also improved the occasion to publicly thank Mrs. Campbell for the assistance she had rendered the Commandery on many occasions. Past Commander Clem Moore acted as master of ceremonies.

The program which furnished interludes between installations, included banjo numbers by Arthur Wells, accompanied upon the piano by Mrs. Wells, and a pianologue "Black and White" by Mrs. Wells. These two entertainers, who are on the Chautauqua circuit, are now residents of Glendale. Two songs were contributed by Dr. Joseph Marple with Mrs. Marple at the piano, and little Blossom Moore, affectionately known as the daughter of the commandery, executed a fancy dance dressed in a pretty old fashioned costume.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies the company adjourned to the hanquet hall where coffee and tamales were served by a committee headed by Sir Knight Jordan. During this repast the wives of retiring officers were called upon for stunt and responded by marching around the room singing "Onward Number 53" to the tune of "Onward Christian Soldiers," concluding the song with a rousing Rah! rah! rah for the Commandery.

Officers installed were George D. Moyse, eminent commander; Dr. Roy V. Hogue, generalissimo; Robert Grumbling, captain general; W. W. Worley, senior warden; J. I. Wernette, junior warden; Oscar Von Oven, prelate; Frank H. Vespter, treasurer; Charles C. Rittenhouse, recorder; Sidney S. Gilhuly, standard bearer; Burt Omar Richardson, warder; Charles H. Ravenscroft, sentinel; Will H. Reynolds, third guard; Thomas Wood, second guard; William N. McMillan, first guard.

MARY GARDEN MAY BE MARRIED SOON

Rumored Star About to Wed Man Just Freed by Wife

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—Gold Coast society was alive with rumors connecting Harold F. McCormick and Mary Garden, grand opera star. When McCormick was divorced yesterday by his wife, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, daughter of the world's richest man, social leaders saw fulfilled Mary Garden's prediction that she would marry a millionaire before 1923. Their names have been linked for some time.

At a magnificent revival of "Salome" last night, where McCormick and his wife occupied separate boxes, directly opposite each other, Miss Garden scored her greatest triumph in opera. Meanwhile, settlement was being effected for the division of the fortunes of two of the richest families in America.

Mrs. McCormick, who will continue with her extensive study of "synthetic psychology" probably will live in the house along the "Gold coast."

McCormick, with Muriel and Fowler, will occupy the Lake Forest country estate.

PROFITEERING IS INVESTIGATED

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 29.—The department of justice is conducting an investigation of the H. C. L. in San Francisco, it became known today. Operatives of the department have been quietly investigating alleged profiteering cases here for some time, it is said. The investigation is in line with the recently announced policy of Attorney General Daugherty to throw the searchlight of investigation on the present prices of many commodities, especially alleged profiteering prices which prevailed during the Christmas season. The investigation, it is said, will also be spread to other coast cities and into the rural districts.

BURCH SEES JOKE GOOD AS ANY ONE

Gets Good "Kick" Out of Experts on "What's in Your Head"

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29.—"It's the bunk!"

In these words Arthur C. Burch, accused of the murder of John Belton Kennedy, today expressed his opinion of the attempt being made by defense alienists to prove him insane. While these astute experts in mental disorders lead the jury through mazes of observations and conclusions on what they think is going on inside the brain of the little man accused of one of the most spectacular crimes in years, the defendant himself sits and snickers.

Whether Burch is insane or not, he has a well developed sense of humor—a sense sometimes lacking, apparently, in the learned witnesses now testifying. He is quick to catch the joke in many questions and answers and his laughter usually leads the courtroom.

JAP MARRIAGES NEW SOLUTION

Tokio Financier Sees Something Like That in Future

SEATTLE, Dec. 29.—The marriage between whites and Japanese is to be desired and probably will be the ultimate solution of the Pacific question, was declared in an interview granted today by Viscount Eiichi Shibusawa, Japanese financier and welfare worker who leaves today for the Orient.

Viscount Shibusawa, who represents the American relations committee of Tokio, a civilian organization, for the promotion of cordiality between Japan and America expressed his satisfaction with the progress of the disarmament conference, which he has been attending, and predicted closer trade relations between the United States and Japan.

In reply to a direct question as to his stand on inter-marriage, the viscount said, "through an interpreter:

"Yes, there is no reason why Japanese and Americans should not intermarry.

"That probably is the ultimate solution of the Pacific question. But that is for the future. Just now the thing to do is for the Japanese and Americans to be friendly and helpful to one another and not to hate."

OLD VANITY POTS REVEAL PAST

LONDON, Dec. 29.—Women who danced for and with the Pharaohs put on the warpaint just as enthusiastically as the lady of today.

A collection of the vanity-pots of an Egyptian lady of quality, rescued from the tomb which held her mummified corpse, has just been brought to London. In it, wonderfully blown glass took the place of the silver toilet accessory of the present time.

Some of the glass pots are beautifully iridescent—due to the inroads made on the pots by the acid in the stibium with which they were filled, and with which the Egyptian lady painted her eyelids and eye-brows.

The collection included a henna pot still containing traces of the dye with which feminine Egypt of the period hennaed her finger-nails—as London's smart set is doing this season.

GOOD MUSIC COSTS MANY THOUSANDS

Did you ever think what it cost to give a concert?

These figures may prove interesting.

The average railroad movement for a band the size of Sousa's costs on an average of $750 per day.

The salaries for a band that numbers nearly 100 first class musicians like Sousa's is between $1100 and $1200 a day.

The newspaper advertising averages $300 per day.

The bill posting and posters cost on an average of $250 per day, while the cost of transferring the baggage from the railroad station and return averages $60 per day.

The overhead expense of $100 a day and the many thousands that it cost to establish a band like Sousa's.

The low cost of admission charged is the best evidence that Lieut.-Commander John Philip Sousa, who comes to the Philharmonic Auditorium, Los Angeles, January 2, 3, 4, can never be classed as a profiteer.

Bill Doak, of St. Louis Most Effective Pitcher in the National League

Bill Doak, the spitball twirler of the St. Louis Cardinals, was the most effective pitcher in the National League, according to the official averages just issued. Doak finished the campaign with the low average of 2.58 earned runs per game. Based on the percentage of games won and lost, Doak ranks third among the twirlers of the Heydler circuit, as Babe Adams and Charlie Glazner, both of the Pittsburgh Pirates, tied for first place with 14 victories and only five defeats. Doak is credited with 15 victories but lost six times.

The first two or three meant nothing in her young life.

Then she began to observe them.

Then she began to celebrate them.

Then she not only celebrated them, but advertised them.

Then she decided that it would be wiser just to observe them.

Then she ignored them.

And finally she denied them.

However, there are always a few kind friends to remind her of them and to keep the score for her.

DISMISSED CASE AGAINST DORMIE

Catslaughter Trial Is Nipped by Police Judge

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 29.—Dogdom won its first great legal victory when Police Judge Lile T. Jacks ordered dismissed the charge of catslaughter against Dormie, arrogant Airedale, accused of killing Sunbeam and 12 other well-known cats.

Judge Jacks declared that the San Francisco ordinance under which Dormie was on trial for his life, is contrary to the constitution of the state of California—that it violates the individual rights of dogs, be they pedigreed Airedales or non descript- mon grels.

The case was dismissed after James T. Brennan, Dormie's attorney, made a motion for dismissal and impassionedly plead for the rights of dogs. Dormie, who was in court, wagged his tail gratefully as the policeman unleashed him. He then trotted across the rooms and leaped into the fond embrace of Jack McMillan, aged 2, his master.

MAC NIDER WILL WORK FOR BONUS

Tried to Keep Debs in Jail He Says But Failed

DES MOINES, Ia., Dec. 28.—"We did all we could to keep Debs where he was," said Colonel Hanford MacNider, national commander of the American Legion. "Our opposition toward the release of others convicted for obstructing the war will continue," he said.

"The bonus bill will be passed by congress despite President Harding's opposition," said MacNider. Commenting on the proposal to finance the bonus measure by a tax on wines and beer, MacNider said the American Legion was not concerned over means of raising the money, but would leave that job to congress.

MOTHERS STRIKE BUENOS AYRES

BUENOS AYRES, Dec. 29.—During the seven years since the outbreak of the war, not withstanding almost complete cessation of emigration, the population of Buenos Ayres has increased by over 300,000. In the last decade the growth was over 630,000, a truly astonishing figure, as compared with the census of other capitals.

There has been, however, a somewhat disquieting decrease in the birth rate of the city. With a population of 1,692,600, the births were only about 34,000 per annum, where as in 1914, when the population was much less, these numbered nearly 51,000.

In some cases this decrease is attributed to the high cost of living, the great jump in price taken by necessities, it is alleged, has led to a "strike of mothers."

NOTED PASTOR DIES

SEATTLE, Dec. 29.—Funeral services for Rev. Samuel S. Greene, 86, pioneer pastor and Sunday school worker of the Pacific northwest, who died at his home here yesterday, will be held Saturday in Plymouth church with a number of his fellow ministers taking part.

Fortunately for the average man, brains are not on exhibition.

BONDS CARRY FOR HI SCHOOL SITE

going to his polling place. If he lives north of the center line of Doran street he should vote at the Central Avenue school; if south of the center line of Windsor road he should go to the Cerritos Avenue school, and if a resident of the district between Doran and Windsor road, he should vote at the high school.

This is perhaps the most important day in the history of Glendale union high school, because it is to decide whether a campus ample for its needs for the next half century, and worthy the pupils it will be called upon to educate, is to be provided by voters of the district.

Two sites are placed before with the situation declare there is no doubt the bonds will carry. With but $85,000 demanded for a 20-acre site, there would seem to be little room for foreboding, but one can never tell into what vagaries voters may be led by prejudice or misinformation.

Two sites will be placed before the voters for choice, one known as the Gray site, situated at Doran and Kenilworth, not far from the western boundary of the city, the other at Broadway and Verdugo road, near the eastern boundary of Glendale city, but about in the center of the entire high school district, which includes Eagle Rock, La Crescenta, Tujunga and Monte Vista. Both sites have outstanding merits, and both ardent advocates. It remains for electors to determine by their preferential votes which shall be chosen.

This will be the fifth bond issue of the district for high school purposes. The first, voted in 1902, was for $10,000; the second, voted in 1908, was for $60,000; in 1913, $100,000 was voted, and in 1920 $60,000 was expended for the bungalow classrooms on the present campus, a total of $230,000.

Of the present site, four and one-third acres were purchased in June, 1908, being the block bounded by Harvard, Louise, Colorado and Maryland, for $22,800. Five years later, in November, 1913, this campus was enlarged by the purchase of a half-block between Colorado and Harvard, closing Maryland at that point, for which $25,900 was paid. This gave a campus totalling six and one-half acres at a cost of $48,700.

On this site buildings have been erected as follows: Administration building, constructed in 1908-1909, which cost approximately $50,000; household arts and mechanical arts buildings, built in 1914-1915, $75,000; bungalows constructed in 1920, $45,000, making a total investment of the district in uildings of $170,000, or in in buildings of $170,000, or in

Of the $230,000 bonds voted in the past, $170,000 are now outstanding.

The assessed valuation of the district has increased rapidly. In 1920 it was $13,467,525, or more than 21 per cent greater than in 1919, and in 1921 it was $17,444,740 or nearly 30 per cent greater than in 1920. The coming year, 1922, will undoubtedly show a like or even greater increase for the reason that public improvements in the building line have been tremendous, adding many thousands of dollars to the value of property.

The enrollment in September, 1921 (1125), showed an incrpase over the enrollment of September, 1920, of 36 per cent. It has now climbed to 1200 or over and the entrance of new students when the mid-year term opens will probably bring it to 1400.

Of the total attendance September, 1921, 112 were credited to Eagle Rock, and 90 to Tujunga, Sunland, La Crescenta, etc. The balance of the pupils in Glendale proper were about equally divided on the east and west sides of Brand boulevard, showing that growth is going forward in all parts of the municipality with about equal rapidity.

A comparison with other high school districts of Southern California shows that the high schools of San Bernardino and Riverside each have 20 acres; Los Angeles high, 23 acres; Ontario, 30 acres, and Pasadena high, with a 20-acre site, has just added to it 13 acres; Fullerton has also purchased a large site.

Glendale is in the same class with these units, but she will not long remain in their company if she fails to provide the educational advantages demanded by the young people of her expanding municipality. Promises of relief from school congestion, it is declared, will persuade parents to be patient for a few years, but if they are unfulfilled, there will be an exodus of the population to territory that is more alive to its responsibilities to the rising generation.

BOTT'S BUSINESS WAS EXCELLENT

H. C. Bott, owner of the Glendale book store, says his holiday trade showed a big increase over last year, in fact it was the best he has enjoyed during the 12 years he has been in business here.

This is due to two causes, he says. An increase in population, is one, and the further fact that Mr. Bott has put in a stock that meets every demand. His book store is a credit to a city many times the size of Glendale, and he is deeply grateful to his patrons for liberal patronage. Mr. Bott says that there is only one man now in business here who started when he opened up his first book store in Glendale.

Truths in Epigram

A witty woman is a treasure; a witty beauty is a power. — Meredith (1828-1913)

We are all clever enough at envying a famous man while he is yet alive, and at praising him when he is dead.—Mimnermus.

Learning is ever in the freshness of its youth, even for the old.—Aeschylus (525-456 B. C.).

RAIN AT CHRISTMAS

The Christmas just past was very wet in this community. It was preceded by wet, followed by wet, and was pretty well soaked itself. It seems, however, that compared with the type of Christmas weather that prevailed elsewhere, people in this end of the state were fortunate. They were getting beneficent showers to the tempest of regions less lucky.

There have been only five wet Christmas days here in the last twenty-one years. One was in 1892 and another in 1893, this pair constituting the only doublet of the series. They were the only rainy Christmases of that decade.

Since 1900 rain has fallen on three Christmas days, these being in 1906, 1913 and the present soppy 1921.

These figures are presented in order that newcomers may not get the impression that Santa Claus always floats into southern California, with whiskers dripping. Usually he arrives to find the sun smiling from a sky of perfect and unbroken blue.

But no amount of rain could quench the Christmas spirit. Never has it burned with a finer glow than marked the recent celebration.

THE WORKERS' PARTY

An organization hoping to be known as the Workers' party is engaged in the effort to be born. The scene of the excitement is in New York, where the police regard it as an incident. The announced purpose of the party is the abolition of capital. The delegates appear to belong mostly to the ancient clan of Never Sweats. They are a lot of vociferous individuals, agile jawed, alert with tongue, but ill equipped intellectually.

A peculiarly strong light is thrown on the character of the gathering by one feature of the proceedings. One speaker had suggested that membership be limited to men and women of "sound moral character." His remarks were drowned in a gale of derisive laughter. Then the chairman explained that any man or woman subscribing to the party articles of faith became thereby a person of sound moral character. However, there might be found among observers, some who would be inclined to reject this view.

An organization that seeks to destroy society, tearing down every sign of prosperity, ignoring rights that have been recognized from the beginnings of government by law and order, placing a premium of sloth and ignorance, does not bespeak high morals. It calls to mind morons rather than morals.

ASTROLOGERS HAVE A SPELL

London astrologers predict that the year 1926 is to be a terrible time. Yes sir. They have read it in the stars. Peering into the heavens they have discerned there the portent of war, pestilence, famine, jazz and free verse. Simply awful.

It may be worth while to state that astrology is not a science, that never has it approached the dignity of a science. It belongs with the reading of palms, the study of teagrounds, and the throwing of mediumistic fit for $2, if the patron has so large a sum.

Nevertheless the fact is to be regretted that ignoramuses, dealing in terms that appear to be abstruse, and are merely foolish, should have launched such a prophesy. Doubtless among the millions who will come in contact with the heralding of evils to come, are many with a degree of intelligence low enough to be impressed by the astrological nonsense. This will cause them to be afraid and unhappy.

Prospects are that the world in 1926 will be a better place in which to live than it is now. The trend of human affairs now is towards the normal. People are getting ready to quit fighting and to go to work. They have no occasion to study the stars. They like to see them twinkle, twinkle in the sky, and at this point their interest ends.

Human destiny is determined largely on the surface of the earth.

FOR A WORLD POLICE

Dr. McLaren, a Pasadena lecturer, favors a world police. He does not favor even the modified disarmament that is the central idea of the present conference.

The plan of a world police is not novel. It is in no sense incompatible with such degree of disarmament as is being proposed. Probably the powers of the world, determining upon the institution of international police, could equip it effectively without devoting, as at present, more than 95 per cent of their revenues to the paraphernalia of destruction; or, as they pay for past wars, preparing for wars in the future.

In policing itself, a city is put to considerable expense. It does not find occasion for turning almost its entire income to this department.

Dr. McLaren appears to place a low estimate on "gentlemen's agreements" and kindred understandings. Apparently he could not trust a gentleman, who as evidence of good faith had cast aside a part of his war outfit, but would trust the same gentleman armed to the teeth. Somehow this view fails to impress.

The thought inspiring this conference is that war is futile, foolish, unnecessary, and should cease. Nations could lessen their burdens of armament in the manner proposed and yet retain entire fitness to cover the seven seas with police. Good faith, justice, and an understanding all 'round, are the essentials. Towards these the conference endeavors to make progress. That there should be felt even an impulse finding expression in such endeavor, is a circumstance full of promise, for which the peoples of the earth ought to thrill with hope and gratitude.

THE REDS LOSE

Two alien reds, notorious agitators, turned aside from their usual activities to commit robbery and murder. This occurred in Massachusetts. After necessary preliminaries the pair were sentenced to death, as seemed, and still seems, quite fitting. They sought a new trial. This has been denied. Probably the commonwealth feels that the two have caused more expense already than they are worth.

Meanwhile this simple case centering about a pair of red assassins had become a world affair. Moscow heard of it and demanded their release. There were explosions of bombs in various diplomatic quarters indicating the displeasure of the communists, the bolshevists and the whole mess of "ists" engaged in promoting disturbance.

Somewhat to the surprise of these persons perhaps, the judge, in setting forth reasons why no new trial should be granted, did not mention the fact that such demand had emanated from Moscow, and been re-echoed in a dozen places taking orders from that center of violence and insanity.

The reds lose again. They always will lose in the long run; because law and order still prevail.

PERSONAL RIGHTS

The new registrar of the county of New York is a woman. She says that women employed in her department are to have the liberty to bob their hair, wear corsets or not, and to carry out their own ideas as to dress and personal adornment. In this she is showing far better judgment than displayed by many male employers. Rushing in where sensible angels might well have hesitated, they have laid down impertinent rules governing individual conduct.

A woman has a right to regulate the length of her own skirt, for example. The privilege of using cosmetics, be it wise or not, is as truly hers as that of having her nails manicured.

There are times when admirers of the sex might wish them to adopt some style different from that which happens to prevail, but realizing that this is a matter for the masculine person to let alone, attending meanwhile to his own business, they muffle their protests, and hope silently that fashions may change.

As to bobbed hair, to many it is becoming. Those who try it and don't like the effect, may permit their tresses to grow again. Probably there is great saving of time, and a charming sense of freedom, in not having to dress and then carry about a mass of hair, however beautiful.

Probably the new registrar will be a successful executive, having the loyal support of her staff.

Nine stabbing affrays ushered in the glad Christmas time in Los Angeles. Five were killed in the streets by automobiles, most of the drivers running away from the victims. However, these melancholy episodes were not at all indicative of the spirit prevailing generally.

The proprietor of a laundry is accused of sending patrons bottles of whisky if they ask to have their bundles returned "wet." The ordinary customer, however, is quite satisfied to get his laundry back clean, the buttons mostly on, and the collars not serrate.

One of the stories that anybody is at liberty to believe, is that a $1000 bill was among the almost countless Christmas gifts of Mrs. Obenchain.

WAR AND THE UNBORN

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The evil effects of war upon the living have been often expatiated upon.

The world has just been aware again of the fact that war not only murders millions of the strongest and fittest men, but it also leaves behind it a trail of famine, of pest, of mutilated lives, or widespread want, and of bankruptcy.

There is hardly a home in the world that has not been in some way flecked by the spattering poison of the great war.

Mr. Douglas, a Dublin merchant, who is chairman of the board of Quakers in that city, called attention to another way in which the virus of war attacks the human stock.

Speaking of the period of desolation caused by the late bloody feuds in Ireland, he says:

"It is the suffering of the innocents, the women and children, that is the hardest to witness. No one can estimate what the effects of constant warfare will be on the future generations of Irish. There have been an unprecedented number of premature births due to fright, and medical men predict that children born in days of such terror will grow up heavily handicapped."

In one section of Ireland a nurse reported that premature births had increased threefold since the fighting started in 1920.

Mr. Douglas cites one case where the father was afraid to go for a physician after curfew and the mother herself started, with the result that her child was born in the streets.

It would seem as if the world had lived long enough to put away such mediaeval bitterness as exists between the Protestants and Catholics of Ireland.

This implies no attempt to construe the Irish question politically one way or another. But there is no doubt that an aggravating element in it is religious feud.

Both Roman Catholics and Protestants are presumed to be Christians. And it is a ghastly commentary upon the intelligence of the human race that the followers of Jesus Christ should make their religion an occasion for the outbreak of the basest and most primitive passions.

The situation in Belfast, according to Mr. Douglas, is probably unparalleled in its deplorable aspects. He says that there have been 9600 Roman Catholic workers violently expelled from their occupations by the mobs of their fellow workers. In one outbreak on July 10, 161 Roman Catholic houses were looted, burned and wrecked, and the homeless people had to be sheltered and fed in the Roman Catholic schools.

Of course it is absurd to say that the fault is all on one side, as there has been only too much evidence of senseless prejudice on both sides.

What must be the feeling of the gentle Christ, who promulgated the law of love and the power of human brotherhood, when He looks down upon the dreadful perversions of His spirit shown by two organizations each bearing His cross as a standard?

THE LISTENING POST

When the undertaker screws down the coffin lid you have had your last chance.

Repentance after that will avail you nothing.

You are a doomed soul for endless billions of years.

The thought is not mine.

I am fervently glad of that.

It is the thought of that blatant, bilious, blustering and bombastic Billy Sunday.

As reported in the press of our sister city.

We are taking it as it is reported by the press.

And wondering what time this is we are living in.

When such blasphemy is spoken from the pulpit, mouthed by mountebanks and printed by the press.

Bill is nothing if not final in his judgments.

He condemns with fire and the sword.

We presume he believes in fire and brimstone.

For the man who utters such blatant nonsense is likely to believe in most anything.

No matter what you may do hereafter, you must wade through molten metal, perhaps.

Red and scorching.

Breathe sulphur fumes.

Take your daily dip in the lake of brimstone.

And of course you get no sleep or rest.

There is no surcease of misery.

It is Hell twenty-four hours of the day for you.

According to Bill.

Who claims to speak in the name of the kindest, sweetest, most forgiving and beautiful soul that ever habited this human temple of flesh.

No chance!

The father does not say that to his child.

For he gives him chance after chance to recover from the error.

The Master did not say that to sinners.

For he would turn the other cheek and forgive ninety and nine times.

But not so with Bill.

Bill is final, everlasting, distinct and unforgiving.

And as gracefully and sweetly set forth in his suggestion of the undertaker and the coffin lid, he pitches you in the lake of fire and leaves you there.

You can't be destroyed.

No death can release you.

And you can't swim out.

If you do you get in the red hot road that crisps your feet.

We do rather better than that on earth.

We are bit more merciful.

We do not say that when the doors of prison close on the offender hope is lost to him.

We offer him a ray of promise.

We have parole laws that operate under certain restrictions and regulations.

We take off some of the sentence for "good conduct."

We aim to keep hope alive and to extend opportunity.

And only in the case of murder do we visit the sentence of death.

What a delightful time Bill will have looking down from the upper balconies into Hell.

And watching the damned with their futile efforts to escape torture.

And to shout "I told you so" over the parapet.

And this is the stuff that is being flung into the faces of intelligent people, without a contradition.

Or denial.

And without being spurned from us for the miserable blasphemy it is.

In the Twentieth century.

When the nations are seeking to get together.

When brothers are seeking to be brothers.

And in that season that commemorates the birth of the Teacher who said 'forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us."

JAMES W. FOLEY.

SONGS OF THE POETS

Man—By John Davies (1569-1626)

I know my soul hath power to know all things,
Yet she is blind and ignorant in all:
I know I'm one of Nature's little kings,
Yet to the least and vilest things am thrall.

I know my life's a pain and but a span;
I know my sense is mock'd in everything;
And, to conclude, I know myself a Man—
Which is a proud and yet a wretched thing.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

"I have noticed that people are just about as happy as they have made up their minds to be." So said Abraham Lincoln. Some different from us who are thinking: "If I only had this or that in my life, how happy I could be!" Which one has the right idea? Maybe it might do us good if we'd think about it for a while.

Happiness isn't so far from us, or as difficult to attain as some of us think that it is. It's just waiting around the corner for us to catch up with it. It makes not a bit of difference to happiness whether we're out of work, have got to our last dollar, lost some of our best friends, or are out of health. She's just as willing to walk with us as ever. All we have to do is to catch up with her. She'll never force her company on any one who really wants to be miserable.

One way to catch up is to look on the best side of what is. There is always a "best" side, you know. We may have all the troubles mentioned in the paragraph above, but things are never so bad that they might be worse. And a few minues of reflection upon our acquaintances will show us that Happiness walks most, not with those whose path always lies in the sunshine and the easy ways, but with those who have learned to conquer troubles.

There's always so much left to enjoy, whatever goes. We can think of what's gone, or we can treasure that which is left. Happiness isn't as hard to catch up with as some of us think.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

NOBEL PRIZE IN LITERATURE

[Chicago News]

Since the inauguration of the Nobel prizes three Americans have received the peace prizes and other Americans have received Nobel prizes in physics, chemistry and medicine. As yet, however, no American has been awarded a Nobel prize in literature, although eleven Europeans and one Asiatic have been so honored. This year's prize for literature goes to Anatole France, the greatest living French writer.

The literary findings of the Swedish judges have not been questioned in the United States, and for very good reason. The United States has not yet been able to agree on a representative team or candidate in literary competitions. There are many good American writers, but none is by common consent pre-eminent. Twice recently the judges in the major poetry prize in this country have failed to agree and have resorted to splitting the prize. The Pulitzer prize in fiction has not been awarded without protest from a strong minority; it has given the winner prestige, but not pre-eminence.

Until the United States can agree in recognizing its major poet and its major novelist this country can hardly demand world recognition in letters. Many of the Nobel prize winners have been comparatively unknown in this country, but almost all of them have been national figures with their own people as truly as is Anatole France among Frenchmen. This is a broad country and it is natural enough that its literary judgments tend to divide along sectional lines. A man big enough to knock down all those sectional barriers probably could take a Nobel prize without much effort.

ABOLISHING FAIRIES

[St. Paul Pioneer Press]

Fairies have been abolished in Russia by order of the soviet commissioner of education.

The old, old stories cannot be told again, and the quaint folk-lore of all races and ages, the heritage of childhood everywhere, is banned.

Realizing the need of substitutes the commissioner has invited authors to write new tales for Russian youngsters under certain restrictions. These must be devoid of all elements of superstition and must contain no mention of angels, fairies and the like. Kings and princes must be described as oppressors of the masse, not as heroes, and the same applies to haughty queens and golden-locked princesses. All mythological or religious subjects also must be avoided. In place of all this it is suggested that the children be interested in the future of mankind, the achievements of science and industry and descriptions of the life of the "toiling masses."

What a travesty indeed is this! The issuance of such an order perhaps is the most illuminating exposition of sovetism which has as yet come forth. What would we Americans think if the government should by decree abolish fairies? The administration would be laughed out of office.

And what would a fairy tale be without kings, queens, princes and princesses cast in the roles of heroes or heroines? Could we well eliminate Oberon, Titania, Mab and Puck without dealing a death blow to these good old stories?

Imagination cannot be legislated out of existence even by a soviet commissioner, and we venture to say that the children of Russia will continue to hear of fairy kings and queens and their adorable, sprightly followers even though the government orders otherwise.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

"Evolution? Take it from me, it's all bunk. If you want to believe that stuff, take your monkey ancestors and go to hell—but leave me out of the crowd."

HENRY JAMES

Evidently the words of an ignorant man. To utter them placed the speaker at the intellectual level of Voliva, the queer creature who proclaims the flatness of the earth.

Evolution is one of the facts the truth of which stands proved. The testimony supporting it has been placed on record throughout millions of years. Men devoted to science are now interpreting the testimony.

To accept evolution is not necessarily to accept relationship with the monkey. It is to admit that the present status of man is the result of growth marked by many changes. Believers in evolution may also believe that man since his first existence as a physical entity, has been man.

Billy Sunday's proclamations and antics may be of interest to the student of psychology. They might be scrutinized with a view to determining what ails the man. For any larger purpose they are worse than valueless, tending to bring ridicule and reproach both upon knowledge and religion.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

If Marty Roberts had had his trousers made without hip pockets he would have missed a new and interesting slant at human nature.

That may not be precisely true, of course. Marty is the sort of a man who never thinks very far ahead. He knows perfectly well that it is a foolish thing to do to carry his entire bankroll in the southwest corner of his person, just where any pickpocket can get at it with the least expenditure of effort. But then, Marty being what Marty is, if he had not carried his money there he would have done some equally foolish thing. He is the sort of man who always goes broke in unexpected places and puts his friends to a lot of trouble.

Anyhow, Marty was robbed in London, and being for the moment both peevish and ashamed, he did not do as he usually does, which is to touch the wire. Instead of that he sold his baggage and his watch and came home by steerage. In order to get home he was obliged to trade in a trunkful of perfectly good clothes and buy a misfit outfit from a second-hand dealer. He looked just like a steerage passenger ought to look.

"And the first cabin passengers used to come to the rail and look down—in both senses—upon us poor devils in the steerage," he said. "Now, I have travelled half a dozen times first cabin and only once by steerage. Yet I give you my word that the more interesting passengers were in the steerage. Not all of them, of course. There were human swine in the steerage, just as there are in the first cabin. But there were more men worth listening to below decks than above."

What seems to have particularly enraged Marty was the attitude of the first cabin passengers. They frankly regarded Marty and his companions as a show set up for their amusement. One day two pretty girls pointed out Marty to their mutual young man and laughed and said funny things just as though Marty had no feelings whatever. And when Marty was provoked to retaliatory measures they complained to the officer of the deck.

"That man down there insulted us," they said.

Marty did not insult any one. He isn't that sort. But for the first time in his life he realized that the under-dog has just as many and as tender feelings as the upper-dog has.

TUCK FOOTHILL HOME SCENE OF PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Tuck entertained at a family party and dinner on Sunday at their beautiful home in the foothills in the real old-fashioned way. The foundation of the feast was a noble turkey, a gift from friends in Colorado, and the house was beautifully decorated with holly and mistletoe, sent by other friends all the way from North Carolina.

Another special feature of the dinner was a handsome cake illuminated by candles, in honor of Mrs. Addie Allen, who celebrated her birthday within the week. Before leaving the board the hostess was presented with a beautiful mantel clock by her guests, together with a scroll bearing their good wishes and their names. The list included Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Allen of Denver, Mrs. Clara Linkogel of Tucson, Edward Glass of Los Angeles, Mrs. Marmaduke and Mrs. Owen of Los Angeles, Mrs. Addie Allen of Glendale, Dr. and Mrs. R. V. Hogue and son Benjy of this city.

MUSIC CLUB TO GIVE CONCERT SOON

The executive board of the Glendale Music Club had a pleasant and important meeting yesterday at the home of the corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. L. Marlenee on South Central avenue. At this session a decision was reached to engage as artist for the next concert of the club, which will take place Friday, January 6 at Glendale Union High School, Miss Ruth Hutchinson, lyric soprano of Los Angeles, who won the prize in the contest put on by the National Federation of Music Clubs which took place at Peterboro, the home of the composer, Mac Dowell. After winning the contest Miss Hutchinson was given a tour of the United States by the federation and was showered with laurels wherever she went.

Another star on the program will be Miss Gertrude Cleophas, who recently appeared as soloist with the Minneapolis Orchestra in a very successful and high class program, and who has recently come to California and selected Glendale because it is such a musical city, as her place of residence. It was felt by the board that this would be an excellent time to introduce her to Glendale music lovers.

The board also decided to put on in Glendale a music memory contest the last week in February in response to the request which the Federation of Music Clubs is making of all its members. Glendale will be the first to set the ball rolling and Mrs. Dora Gibson was named as general chairman of the contest. Representatives of all the organizations in the city, fraternal, religious, social, the schools and theaters will be asked to co-operate.

As the high school authorities have made a ruling that no more general admission tickets can be sold at the concerts if held in the school auditorium, the attendance will be limited to those who are now members of the club or who join it between now and the sixth of January. All who join this month will be exempt from dues for the first half of the year and can become members by paying the initiation fee and the dues for the second half of the year.

With splendid concerts in prospect after the good one just announced, officers expect the enrollment to be increased by at least one hundred new memberships.

MISS FUNDELL IS PARTY HOSTESS

Miss A. Fundell of 332 North Louise street entertained Wednesday night at a delightful Christmas party, the guests being nurses from the Glendale Research hospital, and all of whom came dressed as kids. In the living room stood a beautifully decorated Christmas tree and other decorations were carried out in red and green. The evening was spent in playing all sorts of kid games, after which a delicious supper was served. The guests included, Mrs. G. E. Griffith, Mrs. Elizabeth Pope, Mrs. Amy Goodard, Miss Emma Garbee, Miss Serena Negard, Miss Maude Garbee, Miss Anna Rentz, Miss Mae Seilaz, Miss Jennie Bryant and Miss Betty Mock.

MISS MILDRED McKEE HONOREE AT PARTIES

Miss Mildred McKee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. McKee, who came south from the State university to spend the Christmas holidays at home, has been the object of much social attention from her friends during her stay. Tuesday she was guest of honor at an affair given by Miss Madelaine Love. Wednesday Mrs. Walter Bunker of Hawthorne street entertained for her with a luncheon at which covers were laid for Mrs. G. A. Lavinson, Mrs. R. P. MacMullin, Miss Margery Gunyon, Mrs. E. S. McKee and the honoree.

This evening Miss McKee is entertaining with a slumber party Miss Madelaine Love, Miss Edith Besant, Miss Louise Hester, Miss Lilian Webster, Miss Gertrude Baugn and Miss Margery Gunyon. Saturday she will be the special guest at a bunko party to be given by Mrs. Lavison at which Mrs. Bullock, Miss Ruth Stafford, Miss Lilian Webster, Miss Gertrude Baugn, Mrs. R. P. MacMullin, Miss Margery Gunyon and Mrs. E. S. McKee will also be guests.

TOLEDO PARTY AT VAN WORMER HOME

In hnoor of William Glasper, gunner of the battleship New Mexico, who is leaving sea duty on the Pacific to take a position in the naval service at New York, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Van Wormer entertained a merry party of 20 friends last night at their home, 516 North Kenwood. A notable feature of the evening was the fact that the honor guest, the host and hostess and practically all of the guests were former residents of Toledo, Ohio.

Mr. Glasper leaves Friday and will visit Salt Lake City, Chicago, Toledo and Washington before taking up his new duties in the New York station about February 1.

MRS. WACHTER WAS HOSTESS IN CITY

Mrs. Jennie Wachter of 612 North Central avenue entertained at a dinner party at the Victor Hugo in Los Angeles on Christmas day.

Reservations were made for 12 guests, including Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Robinson and son Ronald of 720 North Central avenue, Mrs. Stella Goodman of 700 North Central avenue, Vernon Williams of Youngstown, Ohio, Zeno Pfan of Cleveland, Ohio, John C. Shay of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight C. Reynolds of San Diego, Mrs. Nellie Dewey Wilbur of Wichita, Kan., and the hostess.

MR. AND MRS. SEITZ ENTERTAIN SUNDAY

Mr. and Mrs. Glen L. Seitz of 506 North Kenwood street entertained at dinner Sunday Messrs. I. Ross and C. oss. Later in the afternoon other guests arrived, including Dr. and Mrs. L. H. Lawson and daughter Margaret of Pasadena, Mrs. Margaret Will of Chicago, who is spending the winter here, Mr. and Mrs. Bahme, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Love and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Brown and daughter, Janice.

A delightful evening was spent at music and games and later a supper was served by the hostess.

CHRISTMAS PARTY AT ELLIOT HOME

A very pleasant Christmas party was held at the new home of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Elliot at Fairmont and Pacific avenues on Monday.

The guests included Dr. and Mrs. H. V. Brown and family, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hunter and daughter of Long Beach, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lind and family, recent arrivals from Spirit Lake, Iowa, and Mr. and Mrs. James Hunter, father and mother of C. E. Hunter. Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Hunter are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Elliot.

MR. AND MRS. LOVE HAVE BIG PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Love entertained quite a party of friends at Christmas dinner on Sunday. A big tree in glittering adornments was the feature of the living room, a small tree centering the dinner table where Christmas was carried out in menu and appointments. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Martin of Burbank, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Schupp of Los Angeles, Miss Mamie Creed of Los Angeles, Walter Large, Roy Large, Ben Clifford, the host and hostess, and their daughter Madelaine. The company remained for the afternoon and evening.

Tuesday night Miss Madelaine Love entertained quite a group of college girls, all being from the Southern Branch U. of C. except Miss Mildred McKee, who is attending Berkeley.

MAY BE QUEEN OF ALBANIA

Mrs Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte

New York may shortly contribute a king and queen to European royalty. It is rumored that the Albanian government, which has been ruled by four regents appointed by parliament, since William of Wied fled to Switzerland at the outbreak of the World War, is seeking Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte of New York as king. Three high commissioners of the Balkan nation recently were delegated by its parliament to find a candidate free from entanglement of European politics, possessed of the friendship and confidence of America and of independent means. Added to these qualifications Bonaparte is a descendant of a powerful ruling house. The only disadvantage to his candidacy is that he is married, whereas Albania would prefer a bachelor king. His wife is the former Mrs. Blanche Pierce-Strebeigh. They were married in 1914. Bonaparte is said to have had three conferences on the subject in last few weeks with A. J. Chekrevi, one of the three high commissioners, who is in this country in fulfillment of his mission. Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte is a descendant of Elizabeth Patterson of Baltimore, who was married in this country to Jerome Bonaparte after his exile from France by Napoleon Bonaparte. Jerome Bonaparte later became king of Westphalia and remarried in Europe, Westphalia refusing to recognize his American wife.

Women Who Are Doing Things in Washington

Miss Gertrude Hamilton.

Miss Gertrude Brooks Hamilton, short story writer of national fame, lives in a cozy apartment in Washington, D. C.., with her mother and several brothers. Miss Hamilton began writing at the age of six and when eight years old sold her first story. She is now a young lady with twenty-six summers back of her and high up in the literary world. Miss Hamilton received $8 for her first story and each year has doubled the profits of preceding years, so one might easily grasp that her efforts have been successful.

Mrs Mary A. Lindsley.

Mrs. Mary A. Lindsley, manager of the Grace Dodge Hotel for Women, the largest hotel of its kind in the United States, run on a commercial basis and catering only to women. Mrs. Lindsley comes from Morristown, N. J., and during the war served as special dietician in the American hospitals in France. She was also director of food service in the government hotel in Washington. Mrs. Lindsley is a graduate of Pratt Institute, N. Y.

Fashions for Americans

Bright colors are playing quite a part in the blouse field this season, the heavier crepes, such as Canton and crepe de chine, being particularly smart in the vivid tones. The blouse shown in the sketch, made of crepe de chine in a toreador red, which is, in fact, a bright scarlet, is trimmed with peasant embroidery in various colors, with black predominating, and caught at the neck with a little bow of half-inch wide black velvet ribbon. The blouse is a slip-over model, and while it is merely waist length, it may be classed with the over-the-skirt blouses, as it ties over the band of the skirt with a self fabric sash belt. The neck arrangement is particularly smart. Unfortunately this type of neck line is not becoming to every woman, but for those who can wear it it is distinctly chic.

Black serves as a trimming for very many of the bright-colored blouses, one smart model recently seen, made of scarlet Canton crepe, being finished at the neck with a jabot of accordion-pleated black chiffon set a trifle to one side. The blouse was quite simple, a tailored style, in fact, with a collar designed to be worn high about the neck, or open, according to preference. The sleeves fitted the arms rather closely to a point just below the elbow, where a full puff of the black chiffon was set in, held in at the wrist with a band cuff.

Black jet embroidery and jet fringe trimmed a blouse of bright blue Canton crepe, and a rust-colored georgette blouse was trimmed with gilt beads.

Paisley effects continue to be very popular. A very smart over-the-skirt model made of Paisley crepe recently seen had wide Jenny sleeves, and was untrimmed except for the cord girdle of black that held it in at the waist line.

Bright Shades Are Popular in This Season's Blouses

The Allies

By JOHN BRECK

Charmer, my dog, has had for the third time in a year the felicity of assuming the responsibility of a new back yard. And for the third time I have paused in the midst of stopping leaks and erecting stovepipes to enjoy her proceedings. They are such a ludicrous travesty on my own. For surely a sense of possession in a beast whose natural bent is to rove without a home for nine months out of the year, and to be excessively secretive about its lair when it has one, is sheer mimicry of its betters.

In her case, at least, it is comic through sheer exaggeration. She gives the house only a cursory investigation, leaving the seal of her approval, likewise the imprint of her form, in the softest chair, thereby establishing a casus belli within doors. After inspecting closets and nose-tempting cubbyholes she delivers a negative report on the rat question and steps outside.

Here she goes into every cranny far more thoroughly, frequently calling for assistance, to prove, I fancy, that her business is as important as mine. There was nothing in the snarl of wire she showed such concern over. I moved it to see. She plants a few weatherworn bones, just to have something to keep an eye on, and picks out a sunny snoozing-spot with due regard to the prevailing wind. Her dive through the cellar window is usually reserved till she is left on guard in solitary state, with plenty of time to bark herself hoarse and indignant before she is let out again. This, also, is a duty.

At dusk the cat who has a previous claim on the premises shows up. Relinquished titles are naught to him. He will travel farther to hunt where he knows each mouse-hole and sparrow-perch than ever his night-errantry will take him. Charmer clears the docks for action, removes her bones to a stump two fields away, and issues an ultimatum. This is glorious, for strife, not change, is the spice of life to her. In vain I arbitrate with ill-aimed pebbles in the dark.

Suddenly silence falls. I guess what it means. A third combatant has come upon the scene—one who doesn't fight fair. The skunk has begun his rounds of chicken-roosts and garbage cans. A polite scratch comes at the kitchen door. Both contenders for the dominion of the yard sneak in to safety. No lying on chairs now; merely an apologetic explanation that something must be done—by somebody else, not me!

So far that is the only conclusion the conference has arrived at. And I wonder if the sudden understanding between the allies will hold over until tomorrow evening.

Dream Control

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

(Copyright, 1921, by The Associated Newspapers.)

Can dreaming be controlled, so that unpleasant dreams may be prevented and pleasant dreams increasingly obtained? This is a question frequently put to psychologists, and as a rule answered by them none too encouragingly.

But now comes one experimenter with dreams, Mrs. H. O. Arnold-Forster, and in a book entitled "Studies in Dreams" affirms emphatically the possibility of dream control.

"I have found," she declares, "that by adopting certain methods and by acquiring a certain discipline of mind, we can insure that our will shall retain a very considerable degree of influence over our dream mind, an influence sufficient to give us a real and effective measure of command over our dreams."

Specifying, Mrs. Arnold-Forster recommends as a preventive of unpleasant dreams, or rather as a means of escape from them, daily repetition of the self-suggestion:

"Remember this is a dream. You are to dream no longer."

Repeated over and over during waking moments, and in especial suggested to one's self on going to bed, it is Mrs. Arnold-Forster's contention that the result will be either instant wakefulness from a distressing dream or removal of the element of terror from the dream.

This, at all events, has been her own experience, as she relates in some detail. She gives the further advice, to those who would by self-suggestion put an end to unpleasant dreams as she is able to do:

"There is nothing in this very simple method but what any one can carry out for himself, an occasional steady concentration of the mind upon the formula, 'Remember, this is a dream. You are to dream no longer,' being all that is needed.

"In practice I find that, whatever form of words is decided upon for the self-suggestion, it should at first be repeated rather frequently, sometimes aloud, and always in the same words.

"And as it is easier to most of us to learn prose or poetry by heart if the thing to be learned is read over before going to sleep, so, until the formula has become a habit of mind, it should be repeated, if possible, just before going to sleep."

As to the voluntary gaining of pleasant dreams, less hope of absolute control is held out But it is at least possible, Mrs. Arnold-Forster assures us, to make dreams that have particularly pleased us recur with some frequency. This may be done by thinking of them frequently during wakefulness.

"If by day," we are told, "the mind turns from time to time to the same thought and recalls the incidents of some dream adventure, such dreams are apt to reward our remembrance and to come back to us at nightfall at our bidding."

Ability to conjure up pleasing dreams is, however, of less practical importance than ability to banish dreams that torment. And all who suffer from such dreams may well make trial of the method of confident and oft reiterated self-suggsetion that Mrs. Arnold-Forster has in her own case found helpful.

MANUFACTURING CENTER TO COME

That the San Fernando road is destined to become a manufacturing center is proven by the many concerns which have moved there or are preparing to transfer their plants. More land is necessary to take care of these plants, even after subdivision after subdivision has been put on the market. The latest tract put on for manufacturing sites and business lots is owned by Arthur L. Holgate of Burbank, who has placed his 747-foot frontage on the boulevard for sale. This acreage is located in Glendale district and is one of the best pieces of property on the road. It is ideal for factories and business property and Mr. Holgate has placed a price on the lots that will move them rapidly. Read his announcement elsewhere in this issue.

Mrs. L. Roe of Riverside spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hoskyns of 234 North Jackson street. Mrs. Roe and Mrs. Hoskyns are sisters.

THE WIDOW'S ADVENTURE ENDS WELL

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

What had happened to the wid- squirrel? Surely you've guess- by this time. The red dog had ught her? Exactly. He had rked his chain out of Louie omson's fingers and pounced ht on her.

Weren't Tommy Peele and Tom- 's good old dog, Watch, who s such a friend of all the woods- ks, horrified? "Drop it! Drop " ordered the little boy, stamp- his foot. But the red dog eant to lay it in Louie's hand, use Louie was the one he tried pretend was his really-truly aster.

"What do you mean by this?" owled Watch, catching him by e scruff of the neck. "You prom- d you wouldn't hurt paw nor w if I'd only bring you here to et Dr. Muskrat."

"Leggo!" protested the red dog soon as he could talk, "I haven't rt that squirrel; honest I ven't. She's still alive—I could el her heart beat. Don't you ow no well-trained dog is allow- to bite his game? I can carry quail without mussing a feather. t something else has hurt her. thought Louie would want to see hat was wrong."

"Eh? What's that?" gasped atch in surprise. "I—I beg your rdon, red dog."

"Make a nest in your cap," ad- sed Tommy. "Then we'll take r over to the Pond and see if a tle water won't help her."

That's how the frightened widow me to wake up out of her faint lying in something soft and warm. She put out her tongue and licked up the drink Tommy was trickling out of a leaf-cup on to her whisk- ers. Then she opened her eyes and saw two strange faces bending over her—big faces, pink and round, without any fur. If she had stopped to look at them twice she would have known they didn't mean to hurt her. But she didn't. Over Louie's shoulder she could see a tree. She forgot that she couldn't climb. Or, rather, she only could if she thought she had to. One bounce, she made, one jump, a desperate scramble, and her tail disappeared into Tad Coon's hole in his very own hick- ory tree.

The two big dogs and the two little boys stood staring after her.

THE EVENING STORY

HER KINGDOM

(Copyright, 1921, by W. Werner)

The telephone bell rang insist- tly, and Marian rose to answer it. was almost sure to be for her. r husband sighed and wished ey might have an occasional al without being interrupted by outside demand on Marian's me.

Dick, Jr., wailed: "Oh, dear! I ose that means some one wants other at some kind of a meeting, d just when we wanted her to me to the launching of our at!"

"Never mind, son!" said the eld- Dick. "We can't very well nch the Marian without having e lady it is named after present, t we can wait for another time, d I'll take you to the movies to- ght!"

Even the promise of a movie led to compensate for little ck's disappointment when his other returned and said that she s needed on an important com- ittee meeting. She looked in sur- ise at the big tears falling on ck's plate, and her husband ex- ained:

"It's the boat Dick and I have en building this vacation. It is ished, and we were naming it e Marian. We thought this was free night from your clubs, and u would assist at the launching. ck's taking it rather hard. Could u give us tomorrow night?"

"Tomorrow night is the com- nity sing," and they couldn't t along without me very well," swered Marian regretfully. "But surely find some time soon w I must run along. Just leave e dishes and you two have a good ne!"

A prolonged honk at the door d of the arrival of the neigh- r's car to take Marian to the eting. She ran down the walk ttoning her gloves, waving good to the two Dicks who stood tching her departure. Then e dropped thoughts of home and e pleading look in her boy's face d assumed the calm poise so ich admired by members of the b. She concentrated her mind the questions to be brought up the improvement of the neigh- rhood. She must not allow the ger issues of neighborhood and te to be shadowed by trifles. e was not one of those women ose horizon was bounded by ir walls.

t was at this point in her oughts that a dazzling light beat on the little coupe, and before rian or her friend could tell at had happened a great car me rushing down the hill at full eed and crashed into the smaller r, turning it completely over. hen the terrified chauffeur rush- to their assistance he found the o women miraculously unhurt, t terribly shaken. He promised make amends and took the wom- home in his car. Marian re- ed to send for a doctor. She nted to go home and be alone. She let herself in the darkened, ent house and dropped down on couch, sobbing out her fright d gratitude. At last she fell into troubled sleep and dreamed a id dream. In her dream she re- ed the terrible moment when e big car came crashing down on her, but this time she did not cape uninjured. She was in- ntly killed. Her body lay, inert d helpless, under the wheels, but r spirit, released, untrammelled bodily conditions, rose and went out the haunts of her earthly e. Still impelled by thoughts of e evening's duties in spirit she ent to the committee meeting of e Ways and Means Club. Much her chagrin she found the meet- progressing in an orderly man- r, her absence unnoted. The ce-president presided in her ace and took the opportunity to troduce and carry through cer- in drastic measures heretofore posed by the absent president. Turning sadly away from this idence of disloyalty to her ideals her spirit flitted to the reform school where she had been spend- ing an entire day each week mold- ing future citizens. Here she found her place supplanted by a young enthusiastic recruit from the so- ciety "social workers" who aimed to entertain the boys rather than to instruct, and thereby gained more popularity in a week than Marian had earned in a year. In turn her spirit visited the hospital, the jail, the juvenile court, the charitable organizations with which she had been connected, and finally the woman's club of which she had been conscientious presi- dent. In every case she found her- self supplanted, her work regard- ed merely as a stepping stone for newer and larger measures, and her passing mentioned with perfunc- tory regret, if mentioned at all. A hundred other women, fully as cap- able and intelligent as she, stood ready to take her place. The ranks filled up, the march of progress went on, her name was but a ghost of the past.

Sadly, with much trepidation, the spirit of the woman who had tried to rule over many things turned toward its last haven, its most intimate atmosphere, the home Marian had once called her kingdom. What would she find? Would she see another woman in her place, herself forgotten? With terrible clearness she recalled the day when big adoring Dick carried her across the threshold and set her on a throne chair, calling her his queen, and crying, "Long live the queen!" She remembered how they had promised each other to make her kingdom a little altar of "home-keeping hearts" a place from which love and joy would radiate into the big world. She saw now that her ambition to help the big world had run away with her "home-keeping heart," that she had traded on Dick's unselfishness and his pride in her outside inter- ests to cheat him of his and little Dick's rightful share of her time and attention. She had failed to be "faithful over a few things" be- fore she had tried to rule over many things. Had she lost her place in her kingdom? Where were her two Dicks? How pain- fully quiet the little house seemed.

The dream faded and a very weary, stiff little woman on the couch in a dark room heard a key turn in the door and the sound of voices, a deep, cheery voice, and a sleepy childish treble.

"Don't like comin' home to empty house. Some boys have mothers that stay home and give 'em cookies and tuck 'em in at night. I do wish my mother wasn't an important lady, don't you Daddy?"

"I wish she knew how important she is to us, old man!" sighed his father. Some day we are going to build a high wall around our place and a beautiful garden inside the wall. It is going to be a queen's garden and your mother will be the queen. The gates will be guarded by two very stern senti- els whose names are Dick, and only once a week shall any one be admitted to the garden of the queen. Once a week she shall look upon the outside world and lend her aid to the needs of her sub- jects, but the rest of the time she shall rest and play and love in her garden, which you and I shall build Dicky boy!"

The deep voice and the childish treble trailed up stairs and the woman on the couch rose with shining eyes to re-enter her king- dom.

A MAKE-UP BOX

"I want to buy a make-up box," said a young married man.

"A make-up box?" the confec- tioner echoed. "We don't keep theatrical supplies."

"I mean a box of chocolates to take home to my wife," said the young man; "I promised to be home three hours ago."

BRITAIN - FRENCH CLASH MAY COME HINTS BALFOUR

Declares French Will Be Responsible for Parley Failure

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29. — The phantom of future war between France and England—conjured up by Arthur J. Balfour—hung over the arms conference today as it proceeded to rescue what it might from the wreck of the submarine and auxiliary craft program.

Balfour, surprisingly docile, has let the conference know there might be a conflict between the two powers, that Britain would prepare against France's subma- rine program, and that his nation believed it "could take care of it- self."

There is no doubt that the long standing friendship between Great Britain and France has received a severe blow as the result of the bitter debates over the French naval position.

Likewise France by her wrecking of the program for submarine and auxiliary craft limitation, has en- dangered her historic friendship with the United States, many ob- servers believe.

France has given no satisfac- tory reason, British and American leaders said, why she needs so many submarines and auxiliary craft and has aroused the sus- picions of the world regarding her future military and naval plans.

A plenary session soon to be called will attempt to place upon France the responsibility for a par- tial failure of the program; France will defend herself. Balfour told the conference substantially:

"While it is almost unthinkable that the respective countries (Bri- tain and France) could be on any- thing but cordial terms, one must not overlook the teaching of his- tory.

"Suppose the almost inconceiv- able hapened and close allies be- came enemies, it was perfectly clear that in that case, no British superiority of capital ships would imperil the life for an hour. To be fair, I must admit that it might conceivably imperil some remote island belonging to France but France with her land armament would remain secure in the face of superior sea power."

London newspapers are bitter in their attack on France today. The Chronicle led the attack. That France is playing the same part at Washington as Germany played at The Hague conference "is no figure of speech" it stated. "France has stepped into Germany's shoes."

The newspaper—a recognized Lloyd Georgian organ, usually ex- pressing government opinion—de- clared it is impossible for Britain to assist France in her attempts to rise out of the financial quagmire if she insists on spending every- thing for submarines.

"This isn't the bargaining point, but the acid test," the Chronicle says.

The Times declares the French attitude will have "an unfortunate effect on American sympathy to- ward France." It states that the world must await another confer- ence for a settlement of the en- tire problem.

LOUIS LONDON AT T. D. & L. THEATER

Fine Vaudeville Friday and Saturday at Pop- ular House

There will be many resolutions made for the New Year but one of the best that can be made is to see the vaudeville road show which is coming to the T. D. and L. theater tomorrow and Saturday. This hol- iday show has been prepared with the idea of having every act a headliner and for real entertain- ment value, Meiklejohn & Dunn feel that this show will be found hard to surpass.

Topping the bill will be Louis London, the Orpheum favorite, who has pleased thousands of people on his tours of this country. Mr. London is often billed as the man with "the million dollar voice" and he quite lives up to his billing. Mr. London is one of the highest salaried artists in vaudeville and his selection of original songs and stories will be found most pleasing.

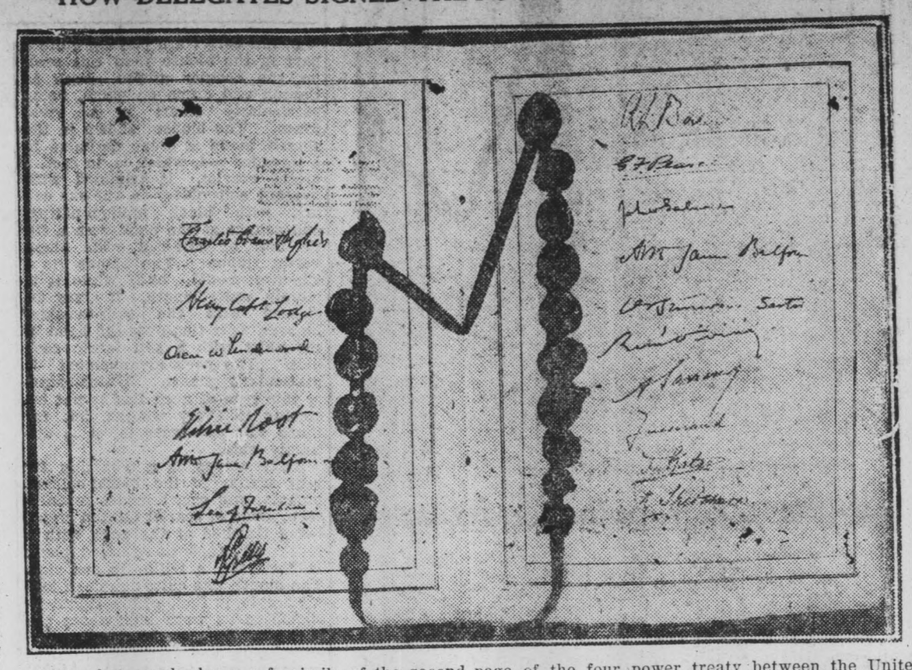
The famous Barnum and Bailey clown, Billy Lyle, is a novel come- dian and juggler and his eccentric make-up is said to be quite as funny as the many clever tricks which he brings with him.

Quite different is the dainty dance divertisement which Mlle. Valeska Foss and her pretty part- ner have to offer as their part of the entertainment. The costumes for this act are especially beautiful and the dancers in the act have been trained by some of the best ballet masters of this country.

The photoplay which will be shown, in addition to the vaude- ville, will be Anita Stewart's lat- est picture, "Playthings of Des- tiny." This picture is a romance of the barren North and tropical shores and during the action of the photoplay a most realistic Arctic blizzard as well as tropical tor- nado furnish a great measure of suspense.

Miss Alice Robertson, the only woman member of congress, as the records put it, was in conversa- tion with a group of male mem- bers. Something made Miss Alice peevish at the way part of the House was acting. "I'm not the only old woman in this House," she said as she looked around the group defiantly. Now the ques- tion that is agitating those present is exactly who Miss Alice looked at at the moment. There are as many different versions as there were members present.

HOW DELEGATES SIGNED THE FOUR POWER PACIFIC PACT



This photograph shows a facsimile of the second page of the four power treaty between the United States, Great Britain, Japan and France, under which they pledge themselves to respect each other's in- sular possessions in the Pacific. The treaty also terminates the Anglo-Japanese alliance. With the ex- ception of two of the signatures of Japan's delegates, which are on the following page, this is a reproduc- tion of the "business end" of the official pact. It will be noticed that the name Arthur James Balfour ap- pears twice, fifth on the first column and fourth in the second. The first time he signed as a British rep- resentative, the second representing the British South African republic, which did not send a delegate to the Arms Conference.

MAKING FIREWOOD OF GERMAN WAR PLANE PROPELLERS

Under the terms of the Versailles treaty, Germany must destroy all her fortifications and implements of warfare, including airplanes, airships and hangars. Many such implements of war are being remodeled or converted into articles for home use. This photograph shows how the poor families of Germany are being permitted to cut up airplane propellers for use as firewood.

SENATORS INVESTIGATING HANGING OF SOLDIERS IN FRANCE

This photograph was made while the senate committee was investigating charges that American soldiers were illegally hanged in France. It shows, left to right, Senator Willis, Senator Shields, Senator Brandegee, chairman; Senator Watson of Georgia, who made the charges; Senator Overman and Senator Ernst.

WHO SAID DISARMAMENT? SURELY NOT THESE FIGHTERS

This photo shows that soldiers of some nations are not very familiar with the Arms Conference going on in Washington. Potential disarmament means nothing in their lives. The fighters pictured are Greek infantrymen in action against Turkish nationalists in Asia Minor, one of the few wars now going on.

NO MORE PARDONS FROM WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—No more political prisoners will be freed—in the near future at least—it was stated at the department of justice. It was strongly indicated that the action of President Harding in freeing 23 of the political prisoners on Christmas day permanently concludes the consideration of all the 197 cases of this character and those not released must serve out their sentences.

Going Up. —By Ripley

By ROBERT L. RIPLEY

Isn't everything expensive?

Here goes the Giants paying $75,000 for Jim O'Connell, a mere youngster, out in San Francisco, who will not be ready for delivery until next fall. They also paid George Burns and Mike Gonzales and a bundle of cash—a total valuation of over $100,000, for Tumbling Heinie Groh, third baseman of the Cincinnati Reds. And they have offered more for Rogers Hornsby of St. Louis.

Babe Ruth cost the owners of the New York Yankees something like $137,000.

Little wonder that the magnates are trying to limit the cost of players!

However, it is doubtful if any such thing can be done. Sportsmen cannot be limited in their desires. Money is no object.

If you think $137,000 an exorbitant sum for a ball player, how about Mr. Joseph Shephard of Argentina, who paid 53,000 pounds—about $230,000—for a horse? That is the amount August Belmont received for Tracery.

A spotted Poland China hog, Chief's Best, brought $35,000 at recent sale in Indiana.

Mrs. E. S. Geberich refused more than $20,000 for a silver shade cat, and E. B. Hager of Algonquin, Ill., paid $100,000 for the pedigreed bull, King Pontiac Hengerveld Frayne.

And just tried to buy Wycolla Boy, a terrier, owned by Mrs. Rose Rainey!

PRIVATE PAPER IN MOSCOW NOW

Theatrical Tri-Weekly Starts on Road to Prosperity

MOSCOW, Dec. 29.—The first private newspaper to be published in Russia since the Bolshevik revolution was placed on sale here today. It is a theatrical tri-weekly called "The Ekran" (The Screen), edited by a group of former theatrical critics, for circulation principally in artistic circles in Moscow. It sells at 3,000 roubles a copy.

Before a permit for publication was issued, the editor had to promise to avoid political subjects, the assistant editor-in-chief told the correspondent of the United Press. The original caption, defining the objects of the paper, read "Theaters, art, literature, movies, and sports." The government crossed out the heading literature, on the grounds that it might trespass on the forbidden precincts.

The Ekran is a 16-page newspaper, about the size of the "illustrated News" in New York. It prints no pictures, however. Its typography is clean, and it is printed on better paper than the government newspapers, the Pravda and Izvestia.

It contains an entire page of theatrical advertisements, two pages of theater announcements, with the week's programs and casts, and a couple of 2-inch store ads.

The reading text is devoted to lengthy reviews of current plays, several "stage gossip" columns, a number of page articles on present-day Russian art and music, a "short story," and light essays on art and drama under the revolution.

The sports page is given over almost entirely to turf, with the results of the day's horse races in Moscow. The style is more like that of a dramatic critic, except that everything is treated in a serious vein. There is no slang. In the corner of the page is a three-paragraph summary of the result of three football games between teams organized by employes in various governmental departments.

The movie page features a staff editorial on "new screen art," headed "Let's film Tosca," in which the writer advocates greater daring in Russian movie production and urges his fellow artists to show the world that Russia, as well as America, can produce films.

On another page is a well-written short story, "A Theatrical Man's Diary," which has the distinction of being the first bit of magazine fiction published in Russia since the revolution.

PANAMA CANAL

There is natural satisfaction over canal for the last fiscal year. It is the showing made by the Panama something to feel good over that the canal is no longer operating at a loss. There is a profit shown of $2,712,000 over all expenses of maintenance and operation. Inasmuch as few Americans ever expected any direct profit from the canal, this is so much to the good.

It is a small amount, though, when the investment is considered. The canal cost $368,000,000. Such an investment would be expected ordinarily to pay an annual return of $15,000,000 or $20,000,000.

For many years the canal earned very little. Interest charges alone, if they were considered, would still leave a big deficit. There would doubtless be another deficit on account of depreciation. It will take a long period of larger earnings than the canal is yet capable of to break even if the canal is considered as a business investment rather than a military expense.

And present and prospective profits will be wiped out if American coast-wise shippers are allowed to use the canal for nothing.

In time of peace, recover from war.

REBUFFED

A Dutch pastor makes it a point to welcome any strangers cordially, and one evening after the completion of the service he hurried down the aisle to station himself at the door.

A Swedish girl was one of the strangers in the congregation. She was employed as a domestic in one of the fashionable homes, and the minister, noting that she was a stranger, stretched out his hand.

He welcomed her to the church and expressed the hope that she would be a regular attendant. Finally he said that if she would be at home some evening during the week he would call.

"Tank you," she murmured bashfully, "but Ay have a fella."

DENOUNCE FRANCE

LONDON, Dec. 29—With similies that linked the name of France with Prussian militarism, the newspapers here today bitterly denounced the French refusal at Washington to limit submarines and hinted at grave consequences.

PANESE SICK OF IBERIAN MESS WANT CHANGE

ple Are Now Rooting for Watchdog of Treasury

OKIO, Dec. 29.—The Japanese ple are rooting for the "watch- of the treasury." They are ty well fed up on high living s coupled with constantly stif- g taxation.

nance Minister Takahashi has n trying to trim the budget of year's government appropria- s, and if he puts it over, he'll bably be the most popular per- in all these parts.

he average coolie may not w an awful lot about interna- al affairs. He's hazy regard- the Yap cable and the open r in China and the naval as- of Guam. But he has the ch, gained from the popular ss, that it would cost him less living if the government would nd less money on the army and y.

he same papers tell him that he Washington conference suc- ds the government can spend for the army and navy. ereupon he emits a lusty "Ban- " for the Washington confer- e.

n every grade of society the ttiment is the same. For eks the officials have been estling with estimates and, at sent, have made a reduction of out $70,000,000 in next year's lget, as compared with the sent. However, that is only on per for the present, and there l be other revisions before the lget is finally prepared and sented to the Diet.

The tentative budgets for the xt fiscal year have been made on a basis of a continuation of e eight-year naval construction ogram and also continued main- nance of the expeditionary forces Siberia. The hope is, however, at these proposed expenditures ll not have to be made.

If present indications here are alized the naval items can be nsiderably reduced as a result the Washington conference. e prospect is that no withdrawal the Japanese troops from Si- ria can be expected for some nths, but even if the soldiers e ordered out by next spring, oney will be saved from the ten- tive budget.

A great hue and cry has been ised over all suggestions that e educational appropriations ight be reduced. Without excep- on, all the principal Japanese wspapers hopped into the ring d howled. They declared that all things that musn't be touch- d—that must, indeed, be tilted if ssible— the education budget eads the list. One of the argu- ents commonly made was that e education budget this year is nly about 3.5 per cent of the tal budget and about 10 per cent the naval estimates, and that e total army and navy appro- riations amounted to almost 50 er cent of the entire government evenues.

OLD ONES

One of the census men called t the home of a workingman in ew York, noted in his neighbor- ood as a great reader and a wise- cre for statistics. He found the an poreing over an encyclopedia.

"How many children have you?" sked the census taker.

"I have just three—and that's ll there will be, too," replied the an, looking up from the book of nowledge.

"All right, but why so positive?"

"According to this book here," aid the man with deadly serious- ess, "every fourth child born in he world is a Chinaman."

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a tablespoonful of Salts if Back hurts or Bladder bothers

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.—Adv.

HARD CASH

JAMES W. FOLEY

Old Abner McSwat says that money ain't what
Some people may think—but it helps quite a lot

He says he is quite sure he could learn to endure
Bein' rich even though he has learned to be poor

He says good friends are best when it comes to the test,
But a little hard cash ain't so awful a pest.

Old Abner McSwat says good cheer helps a lot,
But a nice bank account ain't disgraceful, it' not.

He says money don't touch all your troubles, no much,
But it's good for a cane if it ain't for a crutch.

And he don't believe in greed for a lot, no indeed,
But a little is handy to use when you need.

Old Abner McSwat, he says money may not
Talk as loud as they say, but it whispers a lot.

And he says he'll agree some rich folks you may see
Are unhappy as sin, but they don't have to be,

He says some thrifty folk may not find life a joke
But to find joy in life you don't have to be broke.

Old Abner McSwat says if money may not
Cure all ills flesh is heir to, it helps quite a lot!

TRADESMEN LOOK TO BIG BUSINESS

Marriage of Mary Will Bring on Much More Business

LONDON, Dec. 29.—No event in England these days, even the engagement of King George's daughter, can escape attention from its probable effect on the business and unemployment situation.

And so London has started to figure just how much the manufacturers, tradesmen and workers are going to be relieved by the coming marriage of Princess Mary to Viscount Lascelles. It has been figured, for instance, that the house furnishing trade will profit immediately. Queen Mary, it is reported, has twice visited Chesterfield House, the stately residence of Lascelles and the prospective home of his bride-to-be. The Queen decided, in these two inspections, that the royal daughter would want new fixin's, so the house will be refurnished almost throughout, from the door-mat to the ice box.

But the furniture trade is not the only one that scents profit. More important than that are the orders for new gowns, millinery, hosiery and boots that will be showered upon the women's outfitting establishments. First, of course, comes the Princess' trousseau.

Costumes for the wedding ceremony, when it is considered that between two and three thousand guests are expected will mount into immense figures. These orders will come from members of the peerage, the diplomatic corps and leading figures in the church, the army and navy and the air force.

The jewelry trade, too, will benefit. Especially is there expected a boom in emeralds, for that is the jewel in the Princess' engagement ring.

PACIFIC M. E. WILL HAVE WATCH NIGHT

Watch night services will be held at the Pacific avenue Methodist church, beginning at 8 o'clock p. m. Saturday, December 31, and continuing until 12 o'clock midnight. All the arrangements are made under the auspices of the Epworth League. Though the services and entertainment are for young and old, everybody in the community and those visiting, are invited. There will be community singing, readings, vocal and instrumental musical numbers. Father Time and the New Year will be impersonated. Rev. Harley G. Preston, will relate his experiences during the war, entitled "On the boat from Montreal to London." There will be served home-made cakes, sandwiches, coffee and cocoa. The last half hour will be a devotional service led by Rev. Preston. The church bell will ring out the old year and ring in the new. Everybody invited. No admission charge. Remember the location, West Harvard and Pacific.

NEW YEAR TO BRING BUSINESS GAINS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—The bells that ring in 1922 will usher in a business revival that will develop in due course into a "new era of prosperity" for the United States. This confident prediction was made today by W. P. G. Harding, governor of the federal reserve board. Choosing his words with care and weighing his phrases before he uttered them, Harding told what his exceptional opportunities for surveying the nation's financial condition have shown him.

It may be all right, but why call the disarmament program an agenda?

OPEN THOUSAND NEW LIBRARIES

Bolsheviki Heads Doing Building for Common People

MOSCOW, Dec. 29.—Despite all its difficulties of civil war, the Bolshevik government has opened 1000 public libraries in Moscow alone, according to Citizeness Levchenskova, chief librarian of the Moscow Central Workers' library.

These libraries, which are organized on the American plan, range from tiny branches with only 1000 books, to institutions with two and three hundred thousand volumes, she said. Russia has the distinction of being the first European country to adopt the American library system.

The new libraries have not succeeded thus far, however, in their original purpose of interesting the proletariat in culture. Fewer workmen patronize the libraries now than during the days of the czar, she said, owing to the fact that they work longer and harder and have less opportunity to read.

"The majority of our book borrowers are still the old intelligencia," she explained. "The only difference is they come less frequently. They have neither time nor place to do much reading. Their rooms are too cold in the evenings and they are generally too tired after the long day's work."

Citizeness Levchenskova said the books for the libraries were obtained partly from confiscations of private libraries of the rich, partly from the few public libraries of the old days, and partly by purchase and donation. The libraries are open six hours a day, six days a week.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM INJURY

What might have proven a very serious accident occurred Sunday evening about 7 o'clock when D. C. Lovell and family and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Lovell were returning from Los Angeles, when they were run into, it is stated, at Laurel and Brand by a man from Hollywood who was in a big sedan. Mr. Lovell was going east on Laurel and turning into Brand when he was met by the Hollywood man going south on Brand at a fast rate of speed. He saw Mr. Lovell in time to prevent a head-on collision, but in swerving took off one of the wheels of Lovell's machine and shook the occupants up considerably. Fortunately no one was hurt except Mrs. Lovell, who received a severe jolt, injuring her back.

ALL NATIONS TO TALK SUBMARINES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—A conference of all nations on limiting submarine activities, should the Root resolution to that effect be adopted by the arms conference, is desired by Secretary Hughes and President Harding at the earliest possible moment it was made known today. Harding and Hughes conferred on this matter today. Both believe that if the five big powers agree to restrict submarine activities, the other nations should be given an opportunity to make similar pledges.

IRISH FACTIONS IN AGREEMENT

LONDON, Dec. 29.—A compromise between the De Valera and Griffith factions impends in Dublin, following the statement of Premier Lloyd George, it was learned authoritatively today. A recognized spokesman in Irish affairs predicted an agreement would be reached which would assure ratification of the Anglo-Irish treaty when the Dail reconvenes January 3.

Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Anderson, sister and brother-in-law of Mrs. Calvin Whiting of this city, have returned to Glendale after spending Christmas with their son in Hermosa. They have come to California expecting to make a permanent home here but have not decided just where to locate. They are very favorably impressed with Glendale.

Jury Duty—Mrs. Daniel Campbell of Ard Eevin has been ordered to jury service in civil court No. 11 for one month, beginning January 3. She accepts the call with philosophy and expects to have an interesting experience. It will be the first time she has served in that capacity.

Card Club—The Milford Street Card club will meet Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry McPherson on North Central avenue.

Fortitude is the quality which keeps you from worrying over other people's troubles.

Town Topics

Mrs. Shumate Ill—Mrs. Shumate, mother of Mrs. J. H. Jackson, 332 North Orange street, is not expected to live. She is 75 years old and is suffering from a complication of disorders.

A Busy Man—L. C. Davis, the East Broadway window shade manufacturer, has had a big run of work and has been putting in overtime to take care of the demands of new home owners.

New Dentist—Dr. Paul D. Fridd, the new dentist, is now located in an office which he shares with Dr. Swift at 124 South Brand. He is an ex-service man and is said to be a very efficient dentist.

Buys in Eagle Rock—J. J. Claxton and wife have bought the Pickett Cleaning and Dyeing establishment at Eagle Rock. Mr. Claxton was formerly owner of the Brand Cleaners, which business he developed on a large scale.

Business Good—"Yesterday was a good day with me," said Mr. Stevens, proprietor of Stevens' Paint Store on East Broadway. "I don't know what people are doing with paint this kind of weather, but I have been selling lots of it," concluded Mr. Stevens.

Artistic Work—Lexie Allison, the painter and decorator, has just completed an artistic piece of work on the interior of Goodrich's Cafe on South Central avenue. Notwithstanding the heavy rains he has been busy a greater part of the time on inside work.

Coming Thursday—Mr. and Mrs. Albert Tonk are to arrive Thursday from Washington to make a home in Glendale. They are the sister and brother-in-law of Miss Ida Waite, pincipal of the Colorado street school. She will make her home with them when located.

No Meeting.—No meeting of the Christian Circle Club was held Tuesday night because of the indisposition of Miss Maude Soper, the circle's leader in Bible study. Miss Soper is much better, however, and a meeting is planned for next Tuesday evening at the Baptist church.

Annual Party.—The local W. C. T. U. will have its annual Christmas party Friday evening at the home of Mrs. R. W. Mottern, 211 North Adams street, where all members and friends of the organization will be given a warm welcome and an entertaining evening.

Sad News.—Sorrow came to Mrs. C. D. Shattuck on Christmas day when she received a telegram announcing the death of her mother, Mrs. Emily Howlett at Ypsilanti, Mich. Nine years ago on Thanksgiving day Mrs. Howlett was stricken and she has been an invalid ever since.

Well Pleased—A. S. Amm and W. H. Stinson, the new owners of the Rollin' Pin Bakery, are well pleased with the business since taking charge a few days ago. They are doing a big business. Both are fine bakers. Mrs. Fawkes, wife of the former owner of the bakery, will remain with them for a time as clerk.

Turkey Late—Mr. and Mrs. James M. Lovell, 505 North Maryland avenue, will celebrate Christmas this afternoon three days late. And they did not intend to do this either, but a big fat turkey arrived from their son, Walter Lovell, of Curly, Neb., and of course turkey is good for nothing but to eat, and a big dinner will be the result.

Christmas Party—On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Lee entertained at a Christmas dinner Mrs. H. N. Way, Mrs. Chesney and little daughter, Miss Jennie Steele, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weller and Mr. Rosenberger. Holiday decorations and a tree made a Christmas setting, there was an exchange of gifts and an afternoon and evening of good cheer.

Turkey Dinner—Mr. and Mrs. Paul Girard of 216 South Kenwood entertained at a turkey dinner on Christmas day. The guests who enjoyed their hospitality were Mr. and Mrs. N. Girard of Hollywood, Miss Julia Girard, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander McKennon and son Donald, Mrs. Phoebe Shears and Norman, Leslie, Lorraine and Homer Girard.

Girl Scout Party.—Girl Scouts, under the leadership of Miss Gladys Sharpe enjoyed a Christmas party Tuesday evening in the Girl's Gym of Glendale High. The troop numbers 32 and an equal number of boys, many of them boy scouts had been invited. Parents were also present in goodly numbers. It was a purely social affair the evening being devoted for the most part to games with refreshments served at the close.

A Big Business—Henry Walsma, proprietor of the Fancy Bakery, is one of the Glendale business men who has no kick to make on the holiday trade. Mr. Walsma says his business was better than ever and that he was forced to employ several extra bakers to take care of the demand made upon him Christmas. Mr. Walsma's business has been increasing right along, and he has been putting out bread and pastries second to none in this section.

Married Xmas Eve—At 10 p. m. on Christmas day, Rev. Clifford Cole was called upon to officiate at the wedding of Miss Madge Ellis and Melvin Schrock. It took place at the home of relatives of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Scharnikow, at 109 South Brand, and was a very quiet affair with no attendants. Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Schrock left for San Diego, where they will make their home.

CHURCHES AIDED IN XMAS SPIRIT

Mrs. E. D. Yard, president of the Glendale Welfare Council, states that the beautiful Christmas which the association was able to give to 35 families here who otherwise would have had little of Christmas cheer was made possible in great part by the splendid co-operation of the churches of the city that sent huge boxes of gifts in splendid order and beautifully wrapped. The development of the altruistic spirit in the city and its manifestations this year have made Mrs. Yard and her associates in the work very happy.

That fellow Tom Sims suggests that battleships represent floating debts.

LUMBER CO. IS DOING BUSINESS

The Independent Lumber company, a new industry on San Fernando road, now has a good stock of lumber. The company will carry one of the largest stocks in this section and heavy shipments direct from the Washington mills are being received every few days. In a large advertisement in the Glendale Daily Press the Independent Lumber company sets forth claims for patronage. They announce that they have kiln dried lumber in all sizes and kinds, and that more than two million feet of lumber has been received, with another boat load on the way direct from their Washington mills. They urge builders to get their prices.
